Six of the Passengers of the Lac la Belle Probably Lost.

Curious Confession of a Former "Pal" of William Forrester.

Steamers Fired to Divert Attention From a Great Robbery.

Termination of the Cuban Cigar-Makers' Strike.

A Fresh Conspiracy and Eight Participants Shot.

THE LAC LA BELLE.

The Fifth Boat Heard From—List of the Passengers—Six Probably Lost.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15.—The five boats, with the passengers and crew of the ill-fated steamer Lac la Belle, have all been heard from. Two of the boats landed at Racine, one at Kenosha, one was picked up by the schooner Floretta off Waukegan, and one landed at Calumet, Ill., this morning. Mr. J. E. Dowe, agent for the Englemann Transportation Company at Grand Haven, was one of the boat-load picked up by the Floretta. Before he left the Lac la Belle he tore out from the passenger record a leaf containing a full list of the passengers registered, which are as follows: S. Wyenen, Milwaukee; Mr. Rich and daughter, Peatwater, Mich.; J. E. Dowe, Grand Haven; Mr. Warner and wife, Grand Haven, and the following whose residences are unknown: J. E. Matheson, Aug. A. Smith, wife and child, J. Conners, J. Hurley, H. Freeman Wetten, B. H. Lippencott Somers, A. M. Downing, J. Gee, J. R. Fogg, a cook, name unknown, going to ship aboard the schooner Toledo, and another unknown. The officers and crew numbered thirty-two souls. Mr. Dowe thinks that at least half a dozen persons went down with the vessel. One passenger named S. Wyenen, a traveling agent for a tobacco house, is known to have been lost.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15—Evening.—Those known to be lost by the Lac la Belle disaster, are R. H. Lippincott, traveling agent for Demon & Co., of Milwaukee; S. W. Yener, also a traveling agent of this city; and W. S. Smith, of Watertown, Wis. Those who perished were afraid to trust to the small-boats, and remained on the wreck.

CONFESSION OF A THIEF.

Strange Story of a Former "Pal" of William Forrester—Secret History of the Schooler Diamond Robbery at New-Orleans.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 15.—Since the confession of James Kenny, a noted thief now serving a term in the Tennessee Penitentiary, of his connection with "Billy" Forrester and others in the Schooler diamond robbery at New-Orleans, in 1871, Mr. Schooler has come here. After consulting with Chief of Police Athey, he, with that officer, proceeded to Nashville, and obtaining an interview with Kenny, prevailed upon him to make a full confession, which is to the effect that the robbery was planned by Forrester, Frank Dayne, alias Dago Frank, now in jail in Jersey City, and Dave Cummings; and that, in order to draw the police from the scene of the robbery, they hired men to set steam-boats at the landing on fire, by which the magnificent steamers Thompson, Dean, Magenta, and four others were consumed, and during the fire the robbery was effected, by which $100,000 worth of diamonds were obtained. After remaining quiet awhile the spoils were divided, and he and Forrester came to this city, where a portion were sold, and the remainder sent East, one large stone being sold to Angelo Mowe, who is now on trial here for robbing the Chief of Police's safe. Returning to Memphis, Mr. Schooler and the Chief found Angelo's pin put up as bail for his brother. Mr. Schooler at once recognized the stone, and soon after several others were found and identified, never having been removed from their original setting. In conversation with Mr. Athey, Kenny said he was certain that Forrester murdered Nathan, but no one knew all about it but Forrester's wife, now in Memphis, and she was "too fly" to give Billy away.

CUBA.

The Cigar-Makers' Strike Ended—Deficit in the Finances—A Tax on Slaves to Make it Up—Another Revolutionary Conspiracy.

HAVANA, Oct. 14, via KEY WEST.—The cigar-makers who were on a strike returned to work today, the employers agreeing to the increased rates demanded by the workmen.

The difference between the receipts and expenditures of the island is $13,500,000. The Council of the Administration under the Presidency of the Intendente has resolved to balance the budget without increasing the import or export duties, and meet the whole deficiency by local taxation. The principal item of the new taxation will be the imposition of $24 on each slave, which will produce about $7,000,000.

The Havana journals report the discovery of a conspiracy in the Guisa district, near Bayamo, saying the Cubans intended to rise and capture and kill those favoring the Spanish cause, and burn their establishments. The Spanish General Menduina had eight of the conspirators shot, and others condemned to imprisonment for life. Fifty of the Cubans are awaiting trial.

THE SAVAGES.

Outrages in Arizona—A Sergeant and Three Men Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Advices from Tucson, Arizona Territory, of Oct. 8, say that on the 13th of September the Apache Indians attacked Hughes' ranch, near Crittenden, killed a Mexican and stole the animals belonging to the farm. Lieut. Hall, of the Fifth Cavalry, went to a ranch where a Mrs. Gabara and her children were besieged by Indians, and found the savages 100 strong, armed with breech-loading guns. They retired to the mountains and defied the troops. A Sergeant and five men were dispatched to warn the farmers of Sonata Valley of the presence of hostile Indians near Hughes' ranch, but were attacked, and Sergt. Stewart, Corp. Wm. Nation, Privates Edward Carr and John Walsh, killed. Lieut. Hall received orders from Gen. Howard not to fire on the Indians in the mountains unless he found them engaged in actual outrages. The same order was sent to all the military posts south of the Gila River on the same day of the murder of the soldiers. Gen. Howard was at the time in the Dragoon mountains with the noted Apache Chief Cochise, trying to induce him to go to the reservation. On the 6th of October a band of Apaches from the Santa Rilla mountains, with a herd of stolen cattle, attacked a party of miners, thirty miles from Tucson, and robbed them of all their animals. Two of the miners are missing. The Indians are armed with the best of breech-loading guns and fixed ammunition.

Difficulty Between the Clothiers of Baltimore and their Cutters—the Latter on Strike.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—A large number of leading clothing-houses here having issued a circular requiring cutters in their employment to withdraw from the Order of the Sons of Adam, the head organization of which is in New-York City, and pledging themselves to discharge all who refused to withdraw their membership, the cutters yesterday afternoon held a meeting, and unanimously refused to comply with the demand of the employers. All the cutters have withdrawn from the shops in which they were employed. A communication from the Sons of Adam of Philadelphia was received, indorsing the action of the Baltimore Association and promising aid.

MISSOURI.

Prospects of "Bill," the High Priest of "Liberalism," Rather Gloomy—The Democratic Organ of St. Louis Refuses to Support Him for Congress—"Reconciliation" Badly Needed in the Third District.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—It was repeatedly and positively asserted yesterday that Col. Grosvenor, who was nominated for Congress by the soreheads and Democrats of the First District on Saturday last, would decline the nomination. The reason therefor, it is asserted, is because the Republican, the Democratic newspaper, will not support him. This is regarded as somewhat singular, as Col. George Knapp, senior, proprietor of the Republican, was an active member of the Democratic Convention, and Chairman of the Conference Committee which accepted Grosvenor as a candidate, and made a speech indorsing him. It is even asserted that he promised to support Grosvenor before that gentleman was chosen by the soreheads as their candidate. Now, however, the story goes, he has been backed down by Mr. Hyde, managing editor of the Republican, who, it is said, swears he will resign his position rather than accept Grosvenor, or write a line in his favor. Thus the matter stands at present, and Grosvenor is expected to send his declination to the Sorehead Committee to-morrow.

The Democratic Convention of the Third District, after two vain attempts to nominate a candidate, met again, for the third time, tonight, and nominated Wm. H. Stone for Congress. The contending factions of that district have not been harmonized, however, and Mr. Stone, who is not a popular man, nor qualified for the position, will not poll the full Democratic vote of the district. Jas. McBride, the Irish bolters' candidate, will probably run as an independent candidate, and take a good share of the Irish vote, and insure the election of Hilton, Republican.

Cheering news from the interior of the State continues to come in, and the prospect of a Republican triumph in November brightens daily.

NEW-YORK.

Large Republican Meeting in Fayetteville—The Town Illuminated.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Hon. Clarke Carr, of Illinois, addressed a large Republican mass-meeting in this place last evening, in reply to the speech of Hon. Horatio Seymour, who spoke here last week. Notwithstanding a drizzling rain, there was a large attendance. A delegation of 200 came on a special train from Syracuse, and all the towns near are represented. The ladies had made preparations for feeding all the "Tanner" delegations. Many houses are illuminated, and there is unbounded enthusiasm.

The Campaign in Oswego—Demoralization of the Coalitionists.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The damp blanket thrown over the coalition prospects by the Republican successes of last week has had a demoralizing effect upon the unwashed in this county. Numbers of stanch Democrats declare the intention of voting once for a man who can be elected, and curse the day that they fathered the unholy alliance. Prominent Democrats concede the impossibility of Kernan's election.

The Republican nomination for Assemblyman in this district will be made on Saturday, Oct. 19. The great fight will be here, but those who expect success for any hybrid candidate labor under under a sad delusion. The Republicans in the rural towns of the district are wide awake and enthusiastic, while many Democrats openly declare they will not vote for any "sorehead."

Cox is advertised to preside over a piebald funereal demonstration here on Thursday, the 17th inst.

Senator Conkling and Lyman Tremain in Albany—Grand Republican Rally.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The Republicans of Albany had a great meeting in the Martin Opera-house this evening. The hall was packed to overflowing and many were unable to gain admittance. Hon. Robert H. Pruyn presided, and Senator Conkling made one of his masterly speeches in review of the Greeley coalition, and in a brilliant and powerful discussion of the questions at stake, speaking nearly three hours. He was followed by Hon. Lyman Tremain in a brief and effective address. The meeting was one of the most successful ever held in this city.

END OF A MURDERER.

Death in Prison of a Jealous Husband, Awaiting Trial for Killing His Wife.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—John W. B. Wilkinson, who was to have been tried at the present term of the Criminal Court for the murder of his wife on the 4th of last May, died in the City Jail today. At the time of the murder, he was nearly blind and suffering from Bright's disease. Leaving his victim asleep in bed he crept to the cellar, and arming himself with a heavy cleaver, he groped his way to the bedside. There he attacked his wife with jealous fury, and hacked her head and body most horribly, killing her before she could make an outcry. He was arrested next day at his mother's. He never denied or attempted to palliate the crime, living in his cell morose and uncommunicative. His disease has been unchecked, but his death has been hastened by grief and remorse.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

Jamaica and Panama in Telegraphic Communication—Conspiracy in Costa Rica—Riot in Valparaiso.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 9.—The submarine telegraph between Jamaica and Panama is now in working order, and has been thrown open to the public for business. The following news dispatch for the Associated Press is one of the first received:

ASPINWALL, Oct. 9.—The steamer Ocean Queen has sailed for New-York. The California steamer is now overdue five days. A conspiracy against the Government has been discovered in Costa Rica and defeated. The report of an epidemic in Panama is untrue. A serious riot took place in Valparaiso.

Disasters to shipping are reported from the Windward Islands.

The Centennial Commission Disclaim the Authorship of a Recent Circular.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 15.—A circular which has the appearance of having been sent from the office of the United States Centennial Commission to some newspapers in New-York, claiming that Philadelphia, in consequence of the International Exhibition of 1876 will become the commercial metropolis of the country, is said by Prof. Blake, Executive Commissioner, to be practically a forgery, no such circular having been issued or authorized by the Centennial Commission.

New-Jersey Railroad Litigation—Application to Enjoin the National Railroad Company from Carrying Out their Charter.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 15.—The application of the United Railroad and Canal Companies and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for an injunction to restrain the National Railway Company, and several other companies, recently organized and connected with the National Road, from carrying out their respective charters for the purpose of making a competing road between New-York and Philadelphia, was moved today for argument before the Vice-Chancellor by Benjamin Williamson, on the part of the complainants.

Mr. Courtlandt Parker said that the bill had been received only seven days ago. He wanted time to prepare his answer and argument. The Vice-Chancellor gave them to the 29th inst. The bill numbers sixty pages, and claims, among other things, that the Stanhope Railroad bill is a fraud, and that the plaintiffs have certain rights which must be protected by the Courts.

AQUATIC.

A Scull Race Between George B. Englehardt and James O'Neill at Lansingburg—Englehardt the Winner.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The great shell race between George B. Englehardt of the Lewanhaka Boat Club of Greenpoint, Long Island, and Jas. O'Neill of the Atalanta Boat Club, took place over the Laureate Club course at Lansingburg this afternoon. A large number of people gathered at the starting-point and along the shore road, among them many New-Yorkers and prominent individuals from Chicago and other cities. Englehardt is acknowledged to be a perfect wonder, and it was well known that he had never yet been pressed to do his best in any race. O'Neill although well known among boating men, had rowed but one race in public, in single sculls, but his splendid physique gave many great confidence in his ability.

George B. Englehardt is a little over twenty-one years of age, weighs 140½ pounds, stands 5 feet 6 inches high. His boat was a cedar shell, 30 feet 6 inches long by 10 inches wide, built by Charles Elliott.

Jas. O'Neill is thirty-four years of age, weighs 160 pounds, is 5 feet 9¾ inches high, and rowed a paper shell, 31 feet long by 11½ inches wide.

The course is the only properly surveyed one in the country, one and a half miles and return, making three miles. The referee called the men in line at 4:20 P. M., and shortly after gave them the word with a fair start. They rowed to within a furlong of the turning stake without any perceptible difference between them, but the stake-boats being anchored too close to the eastern shore caused a slight delay to both of them. O'Neill's stake-boat was badly anchored, having a long rope out in which he entangled his scull, causing him to lose several seconds. Englehardt opened a gap of about ten lengths now, which O'Neill reduced to about four on the beginning of the third mile; but, despite O'Neill's best efforts, he could not make up his loss, and Englehardt crossed the line the winner in 22:21, O'Neill's time being 22:26.

The judges were: for Englehardt, Charles Elliott; for O'Neill, F. J. Englehardt. Referee, William B. Curtis.

POLITICAL MISCELLANY.

THE TAMMANY TICKETS.

Serious Trouble Brewing at the Wigwam—The Convention Today—Tweed and Kelly's Fight.

The Tammany Committee on Organization held a session at the Hall yesterday morning, and made arrangements for a series of meetings in the several Assembly districts, at which Abraham R. Lawrence will deliver addresses. The mass-meeting for the ratification of the Tammany City ticket has been appointed for Saturday, the 26th inst.

The County Conference Committee of twenty-one met at the Hall last night, Abram S. Hewitt in the chair. After considerable discussion the following Aldermanic ticket was finally agreed upon, and will be recommended to the Convention which meets this afternoon: Jeremiah Kennefinck, First District; Frederick Zimmer, Sixth District; Nicholas Segar, Tenth District; Patrick Lysaght, Second District; Wm. Sammon, Fifteenth District; Thomas Shields, Fourth District; George W. Plunkitt, Seventeenth District; Robert McCaffery, Nineteenth District; Richard Flannigan, Thirteenth District; John Reilly, Fourteenth District, and Isaac Robinson, Fifth District—all of Tammany Hall; and George P. Bradford, Seventeenth District, and William T. Ashman, Tenth District, of the Liberal Republican Party, thus leaving one other name to be yet placed on the ticket by the Liberal Republican Party. For this remaining nomination James McLaren was named by the Liberal Committee, but it was considered that the effect of nominating this gentleman would be to defeat the general ticket in the Seventh Ward; it is therefore left open.

Appended to the recommendation of this ticket will be a resolution, carefully prepared by the Committee, to the effect that each nominee shall be required to give his earnest and honest support toward the election of Abraham R. Lawrence as Mayor; and giving power to the Committee on Organization to remove any nominee from the ticket in case any deviation from this course is exhibited, and to fill the vacancy thus created.

The Committee adjourned until today at 2 o'clock, when a final session will be had for the purpose of signing the report and resolution, as also to place the name of the remaining candidate on the ticket as shall be recommended by the Liberals Republican. The nomination of Coroner will be left to the pleasure of the Convention, without recommendation from the Committee. It is extremely probable that Woltman will be the successful man.

The rock on which Tammany now threatens to split is the nomination of District-Attorney. It is stated on authority which scarcely admits of question, that Mr. Garvin has made a compact with Tweed to smother the indictments against him. The only hope, therefore, for the latter to escape punishment, is in the re-election of Garvin, and to this end the two are bending all their energies. Mr. Kelly, a bitter enemy of Tweed, is perfectly conversant with this secret bargain, and in the convention on Monday, threatened to "tell the whole story" if the nomination were then forced through. This threat came like a wet blanket on the unruly mob of Garvin's followers; and gave the speaker an opportunity to again urge an adjournment. The candidate of the reform party is Wheeler H. Peckham, but it appears to be a question of considerable doubt whether they are strong enough to carry their point against the forces which Garvin is bringing against them. It is notorious to all that the renomination of Mr. Garvin means the escape of Tweed, if the machinery of the District-Attorney's office can possibly effect it, and though his name on the ticket is regarded as destroying half its chances for success, yet the stake played for is so heavy that the "Ring" party are determined to force the matter through, no other way being open to them to effect the object they have in view. A secret caucus of the Judiciary Subcommittee was held at Tammany Hall yesterday afternoon, but what action it took is at present unknown.

Tammany and Greeleyite Assembly Nominations.

The Grant and Wilson Club of United Nationalities—Grand Demonstration Last Night.

The delegates from the various organizations of naturalized citizens in connection with the Grant and Wilson Central Club of United Nationalities, met last evening at Ittner's Hotel, corner of Grand and Mercer streets, to arrange preliminaries for the holding of a grand mass-meeting. Gen. Franz Sigel presided.

Col. W. J. Tinelli, in introducing a deputation from the Italian Republicans, headed by Capt. Castel-Vecchio, took the opportunity to congratulate the Club on the advance of good feeling and fraternization between the different nationalities composing the organization. The Colonel spoke in severe terms of the action of Mr. Greeley during the war, and referred with the pride of an old soldier to the well-fought battles through which Gen. Grant carried our arms in triumph, and concluded by asserting that Grant would achieve a greater victory in November than his most sanguine friends anticipated.

Gen. Franz Sigel bid welcome to the deputations present. He saw around him representatives of Italy, Belgium, Germany, Scandinavia, France, Poland, Hungary and Switzerland. He bid all welcome. He then proceeded to explain that collectively they indorsed the Philadelphia platform, and would work for the election of Grant and Wilson. In supporting him they followed the dictates of their consciences and the verdict of the people. They would show that such political schemes as that of Cincinnati would not be tolerated; they would not forget their duty to their adopted country, or be deceived by political speculators endeavoring at the sacrifice of principles to reach the White House.

Mr. Wm. N. Loew congratulated the society on the gratifying sight, to see the Sons of Germany and France in this organization clasp hands over the bloody chasm, to see the disciples of Mazzini, receive the fraternal grasp of the Sons of Scandinavia, and the followers of Kossuth fraternize with the countrymen of Poniatowski. He proceeded to review the spirited action of the Republican Party in giving the death-blow to the degrading doctrine of "once a British subject, a British subject forever." The speaker then pointed out the duty of adopted citizens in the coming struggle, and called on them to sustain the Administration of Gen. Grant. Capt. Praetti and others afterward addressed the meeting. The Committee on Organization reported progress, after which the meeting adjourned to assemble at the call of the Chairman.

Mr. Greeley's Western Trip.

Mr. Greeley's contemplated tour to Chicago on a stumping expedition has been postponed indefinitely. Some of his friends in Illinois pressed him to fulfill his promise and start today; but the delicate condition of his wife's health renders it impossible. Mr. Ethan Allen and Mr. Greeley's private secretary are both under the impression that the trip, if at all, will be made by the end of this week.

The German-American Reform General Committee.

At the Germania Assembly Rooms, a meeting was held last night, under the name of a "German-American Reform General Committee." The proceedings were carried on in the English language.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Theodore Mannheim, whereupon a Committee of seven on permanent organization was appointed, on whose report Lewis Levy was elected Chairman. In addition, a number of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries were elected. Mr. Jas. O'Brien, who was in attendance, was introduced to the assembly, and addressed the meeting on the subject of reform, and arguing that in every one of the numerous Commissions in this City there ought to be a German. A Committee of five on resolutions was appointed, and while this Committee retired, Mr. Theodore Mannheim addressed the Committee, arguing that O'Brien, our next Mayor, is the friend of the working men and the poor, and a true Reformer. The Committee then presented resolutions nominating James O'Brien a candidate for the Mayoralty, which nomination was made unanimous. A Conference Committee of one delegate from each Assembly District was then formed to confer with Apollo Hall, and Mr. Philip Brown was elected Treasurer.

Twelfth Ward Democrats Indorse Gen. Grant.

A grand ratification meeting, under the auspices of the Independent Democratic Grant Club of the Twelfth Ward, was held last night, at Harlem Hall, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth-street, to indorse the entire Republican national and State tickets. The hall was decorated with the national colors, and a splendid painting of Gen. Grant adorned the rear of the platform. The exterior of the building was illuminated with Chinese lanterns in endless variety, and a grand display of fire-works enlivened the scene. During the evening the various Republican organizations of the locality marched to the hall, bearing torches and transparencies, and were enthusiastically received. Mr. Lawson H. Fuller was moved to the chair.

Col. F. S. Lambert, a life-long Democrat, in an eloquent address, gave his reasons for supporting Gen. Grant and the whole Republican ticket in preference to the mongrel ticket, which carried Horace Greeley at its head. He, as well as thousands of other Democrats, would show those men who had made that base and infamous bargain at Baltimore, that they would not vote for the man who said that all the convict prisons of the country were filled by Democrats. Speeches were also delivered by Gen. Wm. H. Anthon and others.

Republican Rally in the Eighth Ward.

The Fifth Assembly District Republican Association held a mass-meeting last evening, at No. 121 West Houston-street, Ex-Senator Abraham Lent presiding. The large hall was so crowded that an impromptu meeting had to be held outside. Col. Charles S. Spencer, Col. Morgan, Col. Thorpe and Mr. Gilette addressed the inside assemblage, and W. H. Pope delivered several telling recitations. After the meeting adjourned, a torchlight procession was formed, and marched through the principal streets of the district, attended by a full brass band.

Brooklyn Politics.

The Brooklyn German Republican Central General Committee met last night over the Post-office. Gen. Meyer, the President, was in the chair.

Resolutions expressing condolence with the family and relatives of the late Wm. H. Seward, were adopted.

Resolutions were introduced requesting the General Committee to nominate John F. Henry for Congress for the Second District, and pledging him the German support.

They then nominated Major Hiram Kall for Commissioner of Charities, Wm. Boeckel for Justice of the Peace for the Sixth Judicial District, and Solomon Spitzer for Congressman for the Fourth District. The meeting then adjourned.

There was a grand rally of the Fifth Ward Grant and Wilson Campaign Club last night, at No. 154 High-street. The President, Geo. Cartwright, occupied the chair. Hon. E. J. Williams spoke at length on the record of the Republican Party and its services in the cause of humanity. He was followed by Henderson Benedict and Stephen B. Jacobs. The meeting then separated with enthusiastic cheers for Grant and Wilson.

The Brooklyn Committee of One Hundred have appointed a committee to prepare an address appealing to voters of both parties to unite for reform candidates entirely independent of party.

Fracas at a Political Meeting—A Stable-Keeper Stabbed and Dangerously Wounded.

Last evening a number of the friends of Senator O'Brien held a meeting in the store at the corner of Fifty-seventh-street and Second-avenue, for the purpose of forming a club in the interest of O'Brien. During the proceedings a quarrel occurred between Thomas McKnight, aged forty-six, who keeps a stable at No. 209 East Fifty-seventh-street, and resides at No. 922 Third-avenue, and Christopher Lestrange, a laborer, residing at No. 308 East Forty-ninth-street. The disputants soon came to blows, and during the fracas Lestrange drew a large-bladed pocket-knife, and plunged it into the left side of McKnight, inflicting a very dangerous, and, perhaps, fatal wound. McKnight was taken to his home, and Dr. Thomas was summoned to attend him. Lestrange was arrested, and locked up at the East Fifty-ninth-street Police Station, to await the result of the injuries.

Congratulatory Address of the Pennsylvania Republican Committee.

The Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania have issued an address congratulating the Party of the State, its county committees, speakers and Press, for the devotion they have shown in the late contest and the success with which they have maintained the integrity of their organization against the fierce assault made upon it. They add: "The November battle yet remains to be fought. Practically, its result may be said to be known beyond doubt; but much remains to be done to make that result certain. We go into the fight with our hearts cheered by the great victory just won; and we must win for Grant a still greater triumph than that we have just gained for Hartranft. In carrying on this struggle to its certain and important conclusion, some who have fought us bitterly and taken active part with the enemy, will attempt to regain in our ranks the places they have willfully forsaken. No one has the right to say that these men shall not now come in and vote for Grant; but we have the right to say, and we trust the Chairman of every Republican County Committee in the State will unite with us in saying emphatically and irrevocably, that no one who fought against Hartranft shall be permitted to make a speech under our auspices for Grant. Let them hold meetings of their own, if they will, but not with our aid or permission."

Niblack's Narrow Escape.

William E. Niblack has squeezed back into Congress from the First District of Indiana by a majority of only 123 votes in a total of nearly, if not quite, 35,000. The Lafayette Journal describes the contest, saying that William Heilman, the Republican candidate, "rolled up his sleeves and went to work quietly and unostentatiously, it is true, but none the less effectively for that. The majority he set out to overcome was a little over 2,200—enough to appal a man of less faith and nerve. As the canvass progressed it began gradually to dawn upon Mr. Niblack and his friends that there were breakers ahead. He became alarmed, and set to work as he never worked before to neutralize some of the influences which appeared to be operating in Mr. Heilman's favor. He visited his old party friends and pleaded with them personally not to vote against him, and convinced them that, if they failed to stand by him, he was defeated. Many who had previously pledged themselves to vote for Mr. Heilman could not resist these appeals, and violated their pledges rather than lose a Democratic Congressman."

The Maryland Congressmen.

The Democrats of Maryland are seriously alarmed respecting the election of the Congressmen in at least two of the districts of their State. At present the delegation is entirely Democratic, and the Baltimore Gazette admits that its party can only keep it intact by active exertion. It says: "The Fifth and Sixth Congressional Districts are in danger of being wrested from us, and they can only be saved by strenuous exertion. It is not too late, even now, to carry both of them for Ritchie and Merrick; but neither is secure without work, and that of the most vigorous kind—work such as Ritchie did; work such as Merrick did; work such as all the men of their party aided them in doing at the last election in their respective districts. It is only by work—incessant work—from this time until the 5th of November, that they can count with any degree of confidence on being returned to Congress for another term."

Mr. Frederick Fraley, President of the Board, introduced Wm. E. Dodge, who welcomed the delegates on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce. He regretted that they could not afford them better accommodations, but next time they came he thought they could promise them rooms more appropriate and convenient, so they may not be compelled to look elsewhere for them. He spoke of the importance of the subject to come under the notice of the Board; referred to the increase in our railroads and the influence they must exercise on commerce. He spoke also of the value of the production of precious metals here and in Australia, and this underlying power, he said, was giving increase to trade and vast prosperity to the country. The speaker referred to the vast crops, but which did not remunerate the agriculturist in consequence of the cost of transporting the grain. He concluded by again welcoming the delegates.

Mr. Fraley, in reply, expressed the pleasure they experienced in visiting this great City, the Metropolis of the Union, and proceeded to give interesting recollections of the City, and compared the present with the past. The gentleman then referred to the portraits which adorn the walls of the room, and especially to that of Alexander Hamilton; recollecting what the original had done, should, he said, stimulate them in the work which was before them. He spoke of the vast improvements of the past years and the improved means for diffusing intelligence, particularly the Press, which now circulated millions where only tens were circulated years ago. He hoped that when the Board had terminated its labors the City would be proud of the Board of Trade, and they would certainly be gloriously proud of the great City of New-York.

The Board then adjourned to the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen, where the proceedings were opened with prayer.

An elaborate report from the Executive Council was then read. The report treated on several subjects appertaining to the internal trade of the country, and in reference to its shipping interest said:

This subject has received the attention of the National Board at each of its annual meetings, and at two of them, Cincinnati, 1868, and Buffalo, 1870, it was thoroughly discussed. From the first the distinction which exists between the ship-building and ship-owning class has been recognized among us, and it has been the aim of the Board to point out remedies suited to the peculiar character and condition of each. At St. Louis, last year, a proposition was carried as an amendment, but failed on its final passage to receive a two-thirds vote, asking for the abatement of all duties upon articles of foreign production imported for use in ship-building. The Board voted, however, to ask Congress to encourage ship-owning under the American flag, by permitting all articles of foreign production needed for repairs and for stores upon vessels engaged in the foreign trade, to be withdrawn from bonded warehouses without the payment of duty. It voted unanimously, also, as it had previously done, in favor of the admission to American registration of foreign-built tonnage, with the limitation, however, in this instance, that it should be for the purpose of foreign commerce only. During its session in Washington the Council embodied the opinion of the Board on this subject in a memorial which was laid before Congress, and supported it by statements and arguments at hearings which were accorded to it by the Committees on Commerce of the two Houses. Since that time a bill has been enacted, abating the duty on certain articles of foreign production entering into the construction of vessels built in the United States; and this legislation, as the first which has been adopted by Congress for the revival of the tonnage interests of the nation, during the period of their late depression, gives reason for congratulation. The bill as it passed the House of Representatives, proposed to allow ship's stores to be withdrawn from bond free of duty, for consumption at sea; but the Senate threw out the provision to this effect. On the other hand, the Senate inserted a section permitting the return to American registration, during a period of two years, of all vessels transferred to foreign flags for security and defense, while the war of the rebellion was in progress; but this amendment was lost while the bill was in the hands of the Conference Committee, so that the only propositions for assisting in any way the ship-owning class were rejected by the one branch or by the other. Mr. Senator Corbett had prepared a bill, suggested in part by members of the Council, and approved, as is believed, by the Committee on Commerce on the part of the Senate, according to the terms of which the duty was to be abated on materials and stores of foreign production, and foreign-built iron ships of not less than 2,000 tons were to be allowed registration under the American flag; American-built tonnage alienated during the war, was also to be allowed to return to the protection and privileges of the flag during a period of two years.

This bill was intended to serve as a compromise between the views and interests of the adverse parties, and was drawn with much care and good judgment. As a fair and liberal measure, framed for the benefit of all concerned, and aiming at the desired result, although not proposing immediately to reach it, it would undoubtedly have been acceptable generally to the business men of the country. Its failure to become a law is to be regretted. It has long since become apparent that a most serious mistake was made when Congress, after the termination of the war, refused to allow vessels built abroad to be registered under our laws, or even to permit vessels built in the United States, but transferred in the interests of commerce to other flags, while still owned by American citizens, to be restored to the privileges of their birthright. Various influences combined to secure this prohibitive legislation; the ship-builders supposed that if they could succeed in preventing American merchants from becoming the actual and avowed owners of foreign-built tonnage, or of tonnage which had nominally become foreign, they would thus compel them to give orders at home for new ships to supply the place of those which had been sold, destroyed or transferred during the previous three or four years; and members of Congress acting as their representatives governed themselves accordingly. Then, too, many members of Congress declared themselves to be unwilling that the country in whose ports confederate cruisers had been built, should have the opportunity of supplying our citizens with the ships of which they then stood urgently in need, and which they could not afford to purchase here; while they seemed glad to be able to punish what they regarded as a breach of patriotic duty on the part of those who, under the instinct of self-preservation and really in the interest of the Federal cause, had placed their vessels beyond the reach of these Confederate cruisers. In all this we have a striking illustration of the absolute failure in which a policy of selfishness is certain eventually to issue when it opposes itself against the public good; and also of the danger which lies in legislating upon commercial questions under the influence of prejudice or passion, or in view of any but strictly commercial considerations. For while the hands of our American merchants have been tied by our Navigation laws, the merchants of every other country have been free. The tonnage which American citizens have not been allowed to contract for or to buy has been built nevertheless, and it has been readily purchased by the citizens of other nationalities, who have become the exclusive carriers upon the Atlantic Ocean of passengers and mails, and for the most part of merchandise also, passing from and to the United States, and who have done this business at an immense and constantly increasing profit. The unexpected advance in the price of iron and coal which has taken place in Great Britain during the last few months, has increased materially the cost of steam-ship construction in that country. Capt. John Codman, an intelligent and trustworthy authority, who has returned from Europe within a week, reports, in general terms, that a steam-ship costing on the Clyde a year ago £100,000 would now cost £130,000. The advance in the price of iron vessels has given a new impulse to the construction of wooden sailing ships; and with the abatement of duty on foreign products already referred to the builders of these ships are now in a better condition than for several years past. There is no evidence that the rise in prices on the other side of the Atlantic has yet produced any marked effect upon ocean steam-ship construction in this country. The splendid vessels now building by the enterprise of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the citizens of Philadelphia, were undertaken before the present state of things had developed itself. These vessels, it is hoped, will soon be ready to participate in the emoluments of our Transatlantic traffic; but there is no immediate prospect of their appearance on the ocean being succeeded by the advent of any other American line.

The meeting then proceeded to the election of a presiding officer for the ensuing year. A ballot was taken, and sixty-five votes were cast—63 for Mr. Fraley, 1 for Mr. Fisk, and 1 for Mr. Burrell. Mr. Fraley was then declared reelected, and the announcement was received with great applause. He was then conducted to the chair, and expressed his thanks for the compliment and his gratitude for this renewed tribute of the respect of the members of the Board. He spoke of the great objects of the Board, pointing out their great importance; what they had accomplished in the past, he said, should admonish them for the future. He then referred to the representation present from Canada, and recommended that they be invited to take seats on the floor, and a resolution to that effect was adopted.

The Canadian delegation was then allowed the privilege of participating in the meeting, and Mr. Young, the President, delivered a short address expressive of the desire of the Canadian merchants to participate with their American brothers in all questions of commerce in which they were jointly interested.

On motion of Mr. Ropes, of Boston, Messrs. George Wilson, of the New-York Chamber of Commerce, and R. S. Sevorels, of the Newark Board of Trade, were appointed associate Secretaries with Hamilton A. Hill.

The Treasurer's report showed a balance of $1,624 25 in favor of the Board. A committee was appointed to take the ballot for the Vice-Presidents, but they had not reported up to the adjournment of the proceedings.

Resolutions were presented in reference to annual assessments and the investment of insurance funds, and were referred to a committee to act upon.

The session then adjourned.

THE BIENVILLE.

The Official Investigation Resumed—Three Hundred Thousand Metallic Cartridges on Board.

The investigation into the cause of the loss by fire of the steam-ship Bienville, belonging to the Pacific Mail Company, was resumed yesterday, at No. 23 Pine-street, before United States Inspectors Boole, Hall and Mershon. The first witness called was Patrick Cummings, a stevedore, who testified as follows:

I had charge of storing the freight in the forward hold of the Bienville previous to her last voyage; from four to six men were employed in storing the cargo in the hold, who received instructions from the upper deck in regard to the details of their work; forward of the hatch the hold was filled with salt beef and pork; next to these there were flat cases of machinery and some car-wheels; abreast the hatch long iron pipes were placed in the wings, and just abaft of them boxes of arms and ammunition; next in order were coils of rope and wooden-ware furniture, with boxes of soap extending to the bulkhead; one tier of the ammunition-boxes extended to the deck; above the beef and pork were piled cases of kerosene-oil which reached within about a foot and a half of the deck; abaft of the kerosene, barrels of lard and tallow, and perhaps lard-oil were placed on top of the beef barrels; the tallow and the kerosene-oil were separated by some ordinary barrels; above the tallow and lard were bags of sumach and some cases of crockery and glass; at the top of the machinery were about ten barrels of oil; there might have been in the forward hold some boxes of matches, as that was where they were usually placed, but on this point my memory is indistinct; the whole of the cargo was stowed away too securely for it to get adrift; I have occasionally handled powder-cases, but do not remember stowing any in the hold which resembled them; on the lower deck were between 300 and 400 kegs of lard, a quantity of nail-kegs, some half-barrels which appeared to contain crockery, and 200 or 300 cases of patent medicines; there were also some flour, hardware, dry goods, wooden-ware and other goods between decks; there were six or eight hogsheads, the contents of which I did not know, and the passengers' baggage, which came down the hatch the day the vessel sailed; no cases of matches were between decks, as far as I know, but the foreman on the other side of the deck might have handled matches without my knowledge; the ship's stores were placed on the main deck where the steerage passengers had their berths; none of the ship's officers came into the lower hold while I was stowing the cargo; the chief mate came between decks two or three times to look after us; he found fault because there was not dunnage enough under some cases; don't remember what was in the cases; there is an impression on my mind that some cases of matches were put in the hold on that day, but I cannot speak positively on that point; think some four or five bales of cotton-waste were stowed forward of the hatch, just abaft the oil.

Frederick Howlden testified: I am in the employ of E. Remington & Sons, manufacturers of fire-arms and ammunition: shipped arms and fixed ammunition on the Bienville, viz., 1,000 guns, in cases, twenty in a case; 300 boxes of metallic cartridges, each box containing 1,060 cartridges, and five cases of bayonets; the contents of each package were distinctly marked on the outside; in the cartridge the ball is at the end, the bottom part of the ball being inserted in the cylinder, then there is the powder in the metal case, behind the ball; the tube is a little less than half an inch in diameter—42-100; the primer is about an eighth of an inch in diameter; each cartridge contains seventy-seven grains of Hazard gunpowder; if a heavy weight fell on the boxes of cartridges it could not come in contact with the primers; don't think if it crushed the box that an explosion would follow; the powder contained in the cartridges packed in a single case amounts to ten or eleven pounds.

After Abram Goldwater, a steerage passenger, had testified, the investigation was adjourned until 11 A. M. today.

The Harlem Court-House Swindle—High-Handed Work.

The Senate Commission, appointed to inquire into alleged frauds in the construction of the Harlem Court-house, met yesterday, in the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen, Senators Tiemann and Weismann being present. Mr. Ketchell appeared for the Commissioners, and Mr. J. E. Parsons for the citizens interested. Judges McQuade and Porter were represented by Mr. W. C. Trull, and Senator Genet by Judge Waterbury. Neither of the persons implicated were present. Mr. Parsons said Judge McQuade was to have appeared and produce his bank-book, but he had not done so. Mr. Trull replied that Judge McQuade's counsel had examined the bank-book, and there was nothing in it that would throw any light upon the investigation. He had advised Judge McQuade not to produce it. Mr. Parsons thought the action of Judge McQuade extraordinary, that when ordered to produce the book he should show it to his counsel, and under his advice refuse or neglect to produce it. There had been $280,000 of the people's money put into somebody's pockets, the majority of which had been traced to Genet and McQuade, and in the bank-book the evidence was expected to be found. Judge Waterbury got up to defend Genet, and a long, wordy warfare ensued between counsel, at the close of which Mr. Waterbury said Mr. Genet would not testify until after the examination of Judge McQuade. Mr. Parsons asked leave to produce McQuade, whereupon he replied he had nothing to do with him; and on being asked to produce his client, Genet, he replied that he, counsel, should take no pains to find him; but he might appear at the next investigation, if he chose, of his own accord. No witnesses appearing the investigation was adjourned until today.

The Brooklyn Homœopathic Lying-In Asylum—Removal of the Resident Physician for Being a Roman Catholic.

A meeting of the lady managers of the Brooklyn Homœopathic Lying-in Asylum, at the corner of Willoughby and Lawrence streets, Brooklyn, was held Monday night, for the purpose of taking under consideration the discharge of Dr. J. L. Monmoniere, who was appointed resident physician of the institution on the 18th of September last. Several of the managers had protested against Dr. Monmoniere's appointment when he made his application, on the ground that he was a Roman Catholic.

At a special meeting of some of the ladies, last week, a committee was appointed, who waited upon the Doctor and requested him to resign. This he declined to do, and at the meeting Monday evening he was formally removed by a majority vote of the managers.

The Board of Physicians, who were present at the meeting, voted against Dr. Monmoniere's removal, with the single exception of Dr. Moffat. Three of the ladies—Mrs. Brommell, Morrell and Minton—also voted against removal.

Immediately upon the result being made known, all the physicians present, except Dr. Moffat, tendered their resignation.

Henry Ward Beecher had called upon one of the Advisory Committee, and begged that they should desist from such a step, arguing that the removal of an officer on account of his religious faith would be a lasting disgrace to the institution. Mr. Beecher's appeal, however, had no effect.

Work of a Stray Shot—Probable Fatal Result of an Affray in Brooklyn.

On the evening of the 20th ult. James Ganly, residing at No. 34 Degraw-street, while passing through Van Brunt-street, near Sackett, Brooklyn, was struck in the knee by a stray bullet, of very small size, fired from a pistol by one of a party who were engaged in a row in front of No. 73 Van Brunt-street. John Fox, a shoemaker, residing in the basement of No. 73, was arrested, together with a boy named Charles Meyers, both being charged by different parties with having fired the shot, and they were locked up on charge of felonious assault. At first Ganley's wound was considered insignificant, though three days elapsed before the ball was extracted. Since then the leg has swollen to three times its natural size, and although every effort has been made to effect a cure, Ganley is to all appearances rapidly sinking, and it is thought cannot survive many days. In view of this fact, Fox and Meyers, who were released on bail, have been re-arrested, and officers are in search of Eagan, a young man, who is also supposed to know something about the shooting. Fox and Meyers will be taken before Justice Delmar on the 18th inst., for examination. In the opinion of Ganley's physician the bullet was poisoned.

TWEED AND FIELDS.

The Latter's Trial Set Down for the 23d—Motion to Quash the Indictment Against Tweed.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday, before Judge Brady, in pursuance of previous notice, a motion was to have been made to have the trial of William M. Tweed set down for a particular day, but so far as his case was concerned, the result was a motion that the indictment pending in this Court, which was found under section 467 of the Revised Statutes, providing for the indictment of cheats, be quashed, as being superseded by two other indictments for larceny and forgery, in the Court of General Sessions, growing out of the same subject matter.

On behalf of the prosecution appeared Charles O'Conor, Wheeler H. Peckham, Henry L. Clinton, Attorney-General Barlow, and District-Attorney Garvin. On behalf of Tweed appeared John Graham, David Dudley Field, Willard Bartlett, John A. Burrill, and Fullerton and Knox, while Fields, one of the other indicted parties, was represented by William A. Beach and Miles Beach.

None of the indicted parties were visible in Court. Mr. William A. Beach, counsel for Thos. C. Fields, addressing the Court, said, on a previous application to postpone the trial of his client, his Honor had said he would permit a supplemental application to be made, and as the District-Attorney had then intimated that the affidavit presented should have been made by Mr. Fields in person, and some reflection seeming to have been inferable from the opinion of the Court against him (counsel) personally, he deemed it proper to present to the Court an additional affidavit as to the facts.

Judge Brady—No reflection was intended by me.

Mr. Beach then read his own affidavit, which he said was intended to have been made by junior counsel in the case, but he (Mr. Beach) preferred to take the responsibility of making the affidavit—made, as it was, under peculiar circumstances—on himself. The affidavit sets forth, in substance, that in a conversation previously had with the District-Attorney, the latter had stated to him that, as was his usual custom, he would first call on for trial at the present term the cases of those parties who were in prison, and those cases would very probably occupy the whole term. Relying on this information he had communicated to his client, Fields, his understanding that his case would not be called on during the present term, and the latter, doubtless relying on such communication, had left the City on such business and at a time of which he had no knowledge. As to Connolly, the witness whose presence was required, he had left the City immediately after having given bail, for the purpose, doubtless, of escaping the public opprobrium then being heaped on him, and to recover his health, already greatly impaired. Where he had gone, or when he would return, he was not prepared to say, but of one thing he felt satisfied as counsel, that his testimony would prove very material in the case of his client Fields, and that every effort will be made to obtain it.

Judge Garvin repudiated the statement of the conversation with him, as contained in the affidavit of Mr. Beach, and said he had stated to the latter at the interview referred to, that the jail cases would not probably occupy more than one-half the term, and then the case of Fields might be called on.

Mr. Peckham corroborated the statement of District-Attorney Garvin that there was a distinct understanding with Mr. Beach that the case of Fields would be urged to trial during the present term.

Mr. Beach replied that he felt satisfied both gentlemen were mistaken in their recollection. But however that might be, certain it was that his understanding was as stated in his affidavit, and that understanding having been communicated to his client, he had no doubt the latter had acted upon it. Having acted upon it, it now rested with the Court to say whether it would, on an indictment of such magnitude, force them to trial under the circumstances. It had, moreover, been publicly stated, in which he, counsel, did not concur, that Mr. Fields had expressed a disinclination to be tried before his Honor, regarding him as personally hostile.

Judge Brady—I deem it proper to say with reference to the charge that I am unfriendly to Mr. Fields, that it is utterly without foundation, and I am surprised that it should be made on any mere statement of the Press. In reference to this application it is not strengthened in any respect, as it now appears that Mr. Fields left the City without advising with his counsel as to where he intended to go, and his counsel is unable to say where he is. I will not say—perhaps it is not right that I should say—that is a suspicious circumstance, but might be so said, perhaps, concerning his absence and not personally making this application, especially as he is an officer of the City of New-York. I understand the rule to be established in England and in this State that an application to postpone a criminal trial must be made by the party himself, unless he is abroad, out of the jurisdiction of the country. Therefore, the application does not come within the rule. If the application were within any prescribed rule it would be granted to Mr. Fields as it would to any other person on equal terms. This Court cannot be employed for the purpose of oppression or persecution. But this application not being within any known rule must be denied. I shall put this case down for the 23d of this month, and I do not now say that I shall not then entertain a further application to postpone the case, which is founded in justice and equity.

This disposed of the Fields case for the time being.

Mr. John Graham, then addressing the Court on behalf of William M. Tweed, said he desired to call attention to what might be termed a plea to the jurisdiction, but which would be presented in the form of affidavits. He was satisfied that he could convince the Court that there was no indictment pending against his client in this Court, except one over which the Court could alone exercise a ministerial jurisdiction to quash, and that the indictment in the General Sessions—a Court of coordinate jurisdiction—was the only valid existing indictment they had to meet on the part of his client.

Mr. Graham then proceeded to argue at considerable length that the indictment in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, and the two subsequent ones found in the Court of General Sessions, were all based on the same subject matter; that under the statute all the indictments except that in the General Session, embodying the higher crime and embracing this, superseded this, and the Court was bound to quash this indictment, and might be compelled so to do by writ of mandamus; that through this mode of pleading those manipulating this political prosecution had compelled his client to give bonds under three indictments, when he should have been compelled to give bonds under but one; that if the two indictments in the Court of General Sessions are sustained as correct, then the indictment in this Court must fall, because it cannot be sustained without giving testimony as to the acts alleged in the other two indictments and not alleged in it. Under these circumstances, counsel concluded, and under the statute it became the duty of the Court to quash the prior indictment, if it appeared that it has been superseded by subsequent ones. The indictment for larceny in the Court of Sessions superseded that in this Court, which was for cheating, and under the charge of conversion they would be compelled to prove the forgery which was the ground of the third indictment.

Mr. Peckham, on behalf of the prosecution, said he labored under the same difficulty which seemed to have just occurred to counsel for the defense as to whether these three indictments were founded in the same subject matter or not. By the papers of counsel for the defendant, this seemed to be a recent discovery with them.

Mr. Graham here called attention to the affidavit used on the motion.

Mr. Peckham—When was that affidavit sworn to?

Mr. Graham—East evening, and by Mr. Tweed, too. I had a very agreeable interview with him, notwithstanding the public reports that he had left the City.

Mr. Peckham—I never said he had left the City. My only replies to inquiries were that I knew nothing of his whereabouts.

Judge Brady suggested that perhaps under the circumstances counsel desired time to examine the indictments.

Mr. Peckham replied that this was just what he was about to ask. As to these last two indictments, he had nothing to do with their preparation, and desired time to look into them.

Judge Brady—What time do you want?

Mr. Peckham—Until to-morrow morning.

Mr. Bartlett suggested that more time should be taken, as, if it took so long to get into them, it might take more than a day to master their contents.

Mr. Peckham—Voluntary advice is seldom availed of.

Mr. Graham—Nor always agreeable.

This ended this discussion, and the Court not intending to be in session today, the further hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

In the course of Mr. Graham's argument, he claimed that the prosecution had been seeking for Courts and faces before which to try these cases, to which Judge Brady made reply, that so far as he was concerned, he held this Oyer and Terminer under the general assignment made for the year, and he was sorry that it had so happened, but whatever case might come before it would be tried on its merits, according to the law and the testimony, and without reference to anything that might be said or done outside.

The New Shipping Law—Its Alleged Unconstitutionality.

On Friday next, before Judges Benedict and Woodruff, in the United States Circuit Court, an argument will be heard on the constitutionality of the new shipping act. Ex-Judge W. R. Beebe, who is counsel for four or five men who are charged with boarding incoming vessels in violation of the recent act of Congress, gave notice yesterday in the Circuit Court, when one of these cases was called, that he doubted the legality of the law and desired to argue the matter before the two Judges. He claimed that the act was an infringement on the rights of the citizen, especially that part which forbids any one to go aboard a vessel without the formal permission of the master.

THE STOKES CASE.

Newly Discovered Testimony—Augustus St. Clair Testifies to Having Seen a Pistol in Fisk's Hand During the Rencontre with Stokes.

Late in the afternoon of yesterday Mr. Henry Daly, Jr., and John D. Townsend, counsel on behalf of Edward S. Stokes, and District-Attorney Garvin, Ex-Judge Fullerton and William A. Beach, as counsel representing the prosecution, appeared before Judge Brady, in the Supreme Court, to take the testimony of Augustus St. Clair, de bene esse, on behalf of Edward S. Stokes, the witness, according to the papers on which the order was issued, and his own testimony, being about to depart for California.

Witness, being sworn, testified that on the afternoon of the killing he walked up Broadway, in company with one Edward P. Norton; that at the entrance to the Grand Central he saw Fisk get out of his carriage, and as he entered the hotel, bowed to him; after Fisk had passed in, he (witness) heard a shot, and going inside the door, saw Fisk leaning on the wall at the stairs, with a pistol in his hand; immediately another shot was fired, and witness being frightened, turned and got out; as he passed in first, he saw a little bell-boy coming out; returned in a second time, and saw two or three men—three, he thinks—helping Fisk upstairs; told Mr. Norton as soon as he got out what he saw; was acquainted with Fisk in his lifetime, and had written sketches for him, but had only known Stokes by sight, having seen him at the race-course; he had both received anonymous letters and verbal threats deterring him from giving this testimony; communicated this testimony to Mr. Tremain since the trial while on the way to Saratoga; did not communicate before because of these threats, and the fear that he would be sent to the House of Detention and his family suffer; had no conversation in regard to this affair with Mr. Stokes or any of his counsel except Mr. Tremain, Mr. Daly and Mr. Townsend; told about seeing the pistol to Mr. Hobbs, his brother-in-law, and a customer at Brook's clothing-store.

On cross-examination by Mr. Beach the witness said he was engaged about eight years as a journalist and general writer: is now going to California to engage in the same business; Mr. Norton was a journalist from Mississippi, to whom he had been introduced by a Mr. O'Donnell, now dead; heard from Norton about three weeks ago from Chicago; Fisk, when he first saw him, was leaning against the banisters in an apparently listless position; his pistol was in his right hand; at the same moment he heard the second shot; did not see Stokes; went around to the main entrance, but would not be admitted up stairs, and went out; believes Fisk had on his military cloak, and that the cape hung down; saw him but a moment; Fisk held the pistol by the handle, but could not say if it was a single-barrel or revolver; it was bright; it glittered; during the time of trial, was most of the time in Albany; preferred not to state what his business was there, but could state who he met, among whom was a Mr. Forbey; he did not appreciate the importance of his testimony at the time; corresponded with several country papers and gave descriptions of the trial taken from other descriptions; had but a speaking acquaintance with John McKeon, having seen him at the Buckhout trial; did not know but they might have demanded $50,000 bonds as a witness, and was not sure if he could procure it; had no definite amount fixed in his mind, but thought in such a case it would be large.

On redirect examination he continued: Was called upon by several parties, both on the steps of the United States Court and at my home in Mount Vernon; was asked by them if I was not sorry for Fisk's death; said I was, as I occasionally earned money through him; they said they understood I knew something in the case, and advised me that if I gave it I would only make enemies of Fisk's friends, that Stokes was gone any way; I told them I had nothing to say about it; same parties followed me on the cars—probably to see where I went—and came to my house at Mount Vernon; one was a large man and pock-marked, the other smaller and not fleshy; has seen parties named Kingsland and Ainsworth, belonging to the Erie Road, who resemble the parties to whom he refers; saw them carrying time-tables, and supposed they belonged to the Road.

This constituted the leading points of the witness' testimony bearing on the case, and which, after being sworn to and sealed, will be presented on the next trial of Stokes on behalf of the defense.

TUESDAY, Oct. 15—P. M.

In the Foreign Exchanges today there is a firmer feeling, with a large business done in 60 days' London Bills for Wednesday's mail. The sight rates are also firm, 110½@110¾ ₱ cent. The sales of 60 days' Bills are at 108⅝@108¾ ₱ cent., some of the drawers, at the close of the day, asking 108⅞ ₱ cent. This temper of the Exchange market has advanced the sales of Gold to 112⅝@112¾ ₱ cent. The trade demand is firm at these rates, but there is no decided disposition to Bull the price in the Gold Room on speculation. The Cash Gold continues easy.

The Stock Brokers are getting Money on call loan, today, at 5@6 ₱ cent., and are lending out some of their Stocks on paying 3@5 ₱ cent. for the use of the Money advanced upon them, so that it is fair to conclude that the recent heavy short interest in the Railroads and Miscellaneous Shares is not yet closed out. The fact seems to be that the upward turn has come so suddenly and fiercely in some of these Stocks on the parties previously short of them that no opportunity is afforded for buying them in except at a very serious loss. Resort is therefore had to borrowing the Stocks for delivery on the chances of an early reaction from the extreme advance. This circumstance adds to the ease with which the new Bull accounts on the Exchange are carried forward, while the timely action of the Government last week in relieving the Gold and Greenbacks, and the subsequent results of the elections, have imparted much confidence in the substantial nature of the present rise, and brought forward large orders from outside speculators at advancing prices. The business today, as on yesterday, is enormous in amount and widely distributed over the Railroad and Miscellaneous list. The prices are again rapidly advanced, and the signs of reaction at the close of the day by no means important.

The general speculation at the very close of the Exchange at 4 o'clock P. M., was strong, after a previous reaction of ⅛@1 ₱ cent., against the extreme prices of the Railroads and Western Telegraph and Pacific Mail. The Public Funds left off firm, and Gold steady.

A NURSE SUES FOR TWENTY YEARS' SALARY.

Asenith Angevine vs. Charles W. Sandford, Executor, &c.—This was an action to recover the value of twenty years' services as nurse, at the rate of $15 per week, amounting to $15,600 and interest. It appeared that during the time named the plaintiff attended on an old lady named Eliza Cromeline as companion and nurse, there being no definite agreement as to pay, but there being an existing understanding during the last six years that Mrs. Cromeline would provide for plaintiff in her will. At the death of Mrs. Cromeline she bequeathed $5,500 to plaintiff, and this amount the defendant, as executor, claimed to be in lieu of all compensation.

On the ground of there being no fixed agreement between plaintiff and deceased as to compensation, the Court granted a motion to non-suit, and dismissed the plaintiff's complaint.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.
New-York City.

It is not a question of personal convenience whether every honest voter of the City should come to the polls in November. The magnitude of the issues which depend upon this election make the exercise of the right of suffrage a simple and imperative duty. Remember, then, that no one can shirk the responsibility of voting in November without being guilty of a breach of political trust. Remember, also, that nobody can vote in November who has not been registered in October. Today is the second opportunity for registration which will be given before election, and those who can go today ought not to put off the duty till another occasion.

The Express has a pleasing habit of raking together all the disgusting slanders it can find into one column, heading it "Spirit of the Press," and then when remonstrated with, pleading that it "only quoted" the slanders from some other paper. This is its excuse for publishing a series of cowardly libels on one of the ladies now endeavoring to amuse the public in operatic performances at the Academy of Music. "We only copied it." To us it seems that this work of retailing slander is as infamous as the work of originating it. What makes the conduct of the Express quite inexcusable is, that it never copies the defense of the injured person. For instance, last week it republished with great glee the libel concocted by the Tribune on Gen. BARLOW. But it did not copy a word of Gen. BARLOW'S refutation of that libel—it did not even state that Gen. BARLOW had written a letter on the subject. So it acted in reference to Speaker BLAINE, which was particularly bad behavior on its part, seeing that JAMES BROOKS really does appear to have taken bribes from the Pacific Railroad projectors. In short, the Express, under pretense of giving the "Opinions of the Press," gathers into a heap all the dirt flung at public men by the vilest newspapers in the City, and carefully suppresses what these men have to say in reply. And this is doubtless what it calls "journalism on the improved principles suggested by FENTON'S disciple."

"A fresh look at the tables" has been taken down in Missouri. The result is given in one of those remarkable "Liberal" addresses which seem to be the sole remaining source of consolation to the coalitionists. WM. M. GROSVENOR is the parent of the address referred to. It says that Mr. GREELEY will get ninety-eight Southern votes "sure" in the electoral college, and that if he gets New-York, New-Jersey, Connecticut, Indiana and Missouri, he will only want three votes more to be elected, and these he can "surely get and many more" from the "doubtful" States. Pray, then, what makes these States doubtful? For our own part we have never had any more doubt that Mr. GREELEY would be the next President if he got votes enough, than we had that he would not get votes enough, and as both these convictions are shared by every newspaper reader in the United States, the utility of these perpetual tables is not obvious.

To business men all over the Union, the simple statement made by the leading business men of New-York, of their reasons for supporting Gen. GRANT, will carry great weight. The Treasury has been prudently and faithfully managed: the debt has been paid at a rate exceeding $100,000,000 a year; taxes have been reduced at the rate of $170,000,000. These facts are presented "for the information of whom they may concern." In reality they concern everybody, and the fact that they are vouched for by so many able and wealthy merchants and bankers will compel attention. The document is one of the most noteworthy of the campaign.

If there be anybody foolish enough to believe that the "reform" of Tammany Hall means anything more than the thinnest possible varnish, let him look at the nominations for the Assembly made in several districts last night. Here are our old friends, "DENNY" BURNS, "JIMMY" HAYES and TIMOTHY CAMPBELL coming to the front again, just as if TWEED were still supreme, and reform was a thing undreamt of. Here also is W. W. COOK, whose sole legislative feat last year was the introduction of a bill intended to "strike" the jewelry trade and swindle the people of the State. Now, will Mr. O'CONOR and his associates tell the honest voters of these districts what they think of the candidates of Tammany and the Greeleyites?

We trust that the Republicans of this State have made up their minds not to be distanced by Pennsylvania, in the majority which they will record for GRANT and DIX in November. Our friends in the interior are working with redoubled energy to effect a sweeping triumph. New-York City must meet them at High Bridge with results worthy of the prestige with which we go into the struggle. There is no better way of keeping bright the flame of Republican enthusiasm than by the Wednesday meetings in the Cooper Institute. Secretary ROBESON will be the orator at to-night's meeting, and both for his own sake and that of the cause he represents, Mr. ROBESON ought to be greeted by a fitting array of the Republican strength of the City.

Penny Trumpets.

The "rallying cry" of AUGUSTUS SCHELL very naturally produces a neigh—or shall we say a bray?—from two other "war-horses"—JOHN COCHRANE and ETHAN ALLEN. These chieftains of the Greeley throng do not wish to be extinguished by AUGUSTUS SCHELL, and each issues an address which deserves to be preserved among the curiosities of the canvass. JOHN COCHRANE is a little ahead of SCHELL, but ETHAN ALLEN beats JOHN COCHRANE hollow. JOHN rejects the old-fashioned invocations to "men and brethren," or "freemen," and calls upon his "Compatriots." No other word would suit the gravity of the situation. COCHRANE'S bird's-eye view of affairs does not differ materially from SCHELL'S. He admits that Indiana is "tied with a Liberal Governor"—a very good word for it—but thinks that the issue is now reduced to one between "Money and Manhood"—with capital Ms. The contested States are "sluiced" with Money, and a great deal of it comes from "European bondholders"—news which we commend to the attention of our Republican committees, which may not find money too plentiful. HORACE GREELEY used to say that Mr. WELLS and the free traders were bribed with "British gold," but it remained for our Compatriot, COCHRANE, to discover that the people of every State in the Union were being exposed to the same insidious temptation. Perhaps if a foreigner had suggested that it was possible to bribe the people of the United States, the remark might have been resented even in the Tribune office—but when JOHN COCHRANE asserts it, what can we do but believe it? Nevertheless, the worthy JOHN snaps his fingers at the bribers. He declares that he despises the "venal, the sordid, and the rapacious," and begs them to understand that he (JOHN) is not beaten. That he can prove by "tables." GREELEY can carry twenty States—though where they are situated he does not mention. They are probably in the moon. "Brethren," he cries, "we must not be beaten," and if shouting that would decide the election, Mr. COCHRANE and his friends certainly would not be beaten. But they will not help their cause at the present moment by insulting the Union soldiers, as Mr. GREELEY did at Pittsburg; or by alleging that the entire voting population of the country has been bribed with British gold. Our compatriots, the Greeleyites, are going the wrong way to work.

ETHAN ALLEN addresses himself to the task which has mainly occupied the Greeleyites after every election—the task of explaining away a crushing defeat. It means nothing. It is all done by fraud. "Take a fresh look at the table—we are on the homestretch," &c., &c. Then ETHAN borrows bodily some of the arguments we used against the continued existence of Tammany, and of course falls in love with himself when decked in these stolen plumes. He thinks the ballot is "the corner-stone of our existence"—and the frauds which he sent two convicts to commit in North Carolina, and which his party repeated in Georgia, must doubtless be very repugnant to him. But he is silent on that point. To cheat in the name of HORACE GREELEY and Reform is of course nothing more than right.

The spirit of ALLEN fires up as he proceeds. If GRANT is re-elected, he will have another revolution—will this terrible man ALLEN. He will slake his disappointment in blood. Cities must be sacked—every man who votes for GRANT must be put to the sword. ETHAN ALLEN has been a supplicant for office ever since he was breeched, and now, if he misses his last chance, he will cry havoc and let loose the dogs of war. What sort of a man ETHAN ALLEN may be in outward appearance we know not, but he must be a gruesome personage to meet out late at night. We are more afraid of him than even of AUGUSTUS SCHELL. In most of our former contests, it has been generally understood that it was the duty of the minority to accept the decision of the majority. But this most valiant ALLEN gives us to understand that he will organize a resistance to the Government. Listen to the fire-eater:

> "Let these base deeds of the dominant party be repeated in November, and who shall say that the hour may not be fast approaching when some energetic spirit shall thunder in the willing ear of an outraged nation that physical resistance to such infamy is obedience to God?"

Our friend's modesty led him to refrain from mentioning the name of the "energetic spirit" who is thus to thunder in our ears—but he has confided it to us. It is ETHAN ALLEN. He will go round the streets smeared with gore, on the night of the first Tuesday in November, and cry aloud for vengeance. In the meantime, his friends might, with advantage, apply a few wet napkins to his fevered brow, so as to cool him off a little. If DANTON ALLEN goes on like this, it is a lunatic asylum which will receive him, not a Federal office.

It is rather queer, considering the "fresh look" they have had at the patent consolation "tables," that all these Greeleyites should be foaming at the mouth so furiously. Here is Col. FORNEY raving at the TIMES almost as violently as SAMUEL BOWLES has ever done. He is down on his abject knees to Gen. GRANT, crying piteously that he "didn't mean to do it," and in the intervals of his paroxysms of repentance he swears horribly at the TIMES. Yet we have always attributed every virtue to Col. FORNEY except courage, good faith, and honesty—and surely he does not want us to praise him for what he does not possess? We did not make him—why abuse us for his defects? He may grovel now where nine days ago he hoped to dictate—we leave him on the ground, and only ask that he will not harrow up our feelings with his curses. The truth is that defeat, utter and final defeat, stares this miserable faction of deserters in the face. The Greeley swindle has not deceived the public. A gang of adventurers is not a party. ETHAN ALLEN may threaten revolution, JOHN COCHRANE may protest that all the people are bribed, and AUGUSTUS SCHELL may weep over the "appalling calamity" in Pennsylvania—but the quiet, sensible voters will not be induced by this machinery to place GREELEY, FENTON, FORNEY & Co. in power. They will pronounce an unmistakable judgment in November on the most infamous political coalition ever seen, and go to bed at night undisturbed by fears of ETHAN ALLEN'S projected massacre.

The Duty Before Us.

The crisis of the canvass has passed. It has been settled beyond reasonable doubt that Mr. GREELEY will receive comparatively few Republican votes; and it having been certain from the beginning that he would receive very much less than the full Democratic vote, there is little left for him and his partisans to do than to study how to die with decency; and, if they accomplish that end, it may be said of them, as it was of a "disloyal traitor" like themselves, that nothing in their life became them like their leaving of it. It may be safely assumed that the Democrats will spend little money or energy in an effort merely to swell the minority of the life-long enemy of their party, whom, in their desperation, they took up with as a last resort. So far as the Presidency is concerned, the spirit has gone out of the struggle, which on that point has already begun to be characterized by languor, the consequence of a consciousness of certain defeat on the part of the coalition, and which will hereafter be enlivened only by the outcries and denunciations of Mr. GREELEY'S expiring little faction of renegades.

But in this certainty there is danger—the danger which always accompanies a sense of security in a contest not positively determined. The danger in this case is not so much that Mr. GREELEY may be elected by default or neglect on the part of the Republicans, but rather that his defeat may not be made so overwhelming as it is important that it should be. A good General always seeks to turn a repulse into a defeat, and a defeat into a rout. A like policy should now be pursued by all the Republican leaders. Mr. GREELEY and his faction should not only be beaten, but crushed. If ever the cry of "no quarter" is justifiable, it is in the case of a body of men who have not only abandoned their own standard, but struck hands with the enemy, and joined their forces with his in hope of plunder. The thought of what Mr. GREELEY, and the Fentons, and the Banks's, who joined his standard of revolt, have sought to do, and the almost avowed purpose with which they have sought it, should animate all true Republicans to continue their exertions until the last hour of election day, in order that these men may not only fail, but be swept away with such a flood of condemnation and reprobation that they will never raise their heads hereafter.

This, however, is not the only, or perhaps the most important end to be attained by continued vigilance and energy in the remaining weeks of the canvass. The Democratic leaders, although they will not expend their strength in "working for a dead horse," and will quite surely give Mr. GREELEY only that kind of support to which they are bound in honor, will as surely turn their craft and their energy toward the attainment of the minor, yet, in the aggregate, hardly to them the least important prizes of the struggle. They will strive to counteract their certain defeat upon the general ticket by securing the election of as many local candidates as possible. Their avowal that their purpose in accepting Mr. GREELEY was to obtain a Democratic Congress and Democratic State officers was hardly necessary. Of course that was their purpose from the beginning; now it is their only purpose; and upon this point they must be met by continued, unflagging exertion on the part of the Republican organizations throughout the country. The sense of the certainty of Gen. GRANT'S election, which has been expressed since the recent State elections by all intelligent and moderately candid observers, both at home and abroad, has in it this element of danger. A relaxation of our vigilance, a lull in our exertion, may make our victory but partial, and it should be complete. We must not only scotch the snake, but kill it. Let there be, therefore, no diminution in our efforts: let every Republican feel that it is his duty that every other Republican within the circle of his influence deposits his vote in favor of the policy and the party which has preserved and elevated and glorified the Union; and let our work be thorough and hearty, until on election day the November sun goes down upon the destruction of the Republican faction, and the total discomfiture of the Democrats with whom they sought alliance.

The Froude Dinner.

Mr. FROUDE was introduced for the first time yesterday evening to New-Yorkers, at a banquet given in his honor by Messrs. SCRIBNER & Co., a publishing house which rivals the fame of JOHN MURRAY in England, and which is well entitled to be the means of making one of the greatest of living historians known to the American people. The occasion was a most interesting one, and it will be seen from our report that Mr. FROUDE delivered a speech not unworthy of his fame. He has come here to tell the truth about Ireland—nothing to extenuate, nor aught set down in malice—and his address yesterday will make it clear to every one that he is well qualified to speak on a most difficult and embarrassing subject. He has studied Irish history as few living men have done; he has been personally acquainted with Ireland and Irishmen for thirty years. He will give us the historian's view of the sad "Irish problem" rather than the demagogue's. To-night he delivers his first lecture at Association Hall, and we hope that all intelligent men and women will go to hear him.

On the other speeches made last night it is unnecessary to comment at any length. We must say, however, that Mr. GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS delivered one of the most felicitous addresses ever heard in this City. It is worthy of the community on behalf of which Mr. CURTIS welcomed the historian. Mr. EMERSON'S speech, and Mr. BEECHER'S, were exceedingly interesting, and we think our readers will be glad of the opportunity of reading the report of them, which we publish today. They will at least be a relief to the mind jaded with angry politics.

The Local Nominations.

The painful progress of the business of nomination in the Tammany County Convention, reveals very clearly the fact that any local ticket emanating from this source will only be placed in the field to be beaten. The respectable head-pieces who are playing, with indifferent success, the rôle of Tammany managers, got their colleagues to agree to the pretense of consulting with the various Reform Associations, in regard to the men to be placed in the field for the Mayoralty and the Judicial positions to be filled at the approaching election. Finding the preferences of Tammany and those of the Reformers as difficult to mix as oil and water, the thin pretense of conference was abandoned, and the discordant elements of the Convention proceeded to "fix things" in their own way. The progress of their deliberations has almost brought them to blows already, and the conclusions which they have so far reached, are very significant of the divisions which will render Tammany utterly impotent either for good or evil on election day. Their imperfect ticket reveals here a compromise with respectability, and there with rowdyism; and the violent scene which ensued over the District-Attorney nomination shows very clearly which is the strongest element in Tammany Hall.

Our chief objections to the Tammany nominee for Mayor are that he has been placed where he is by the most dangerous and corrupt man in the organization—Sheriff BRENNAN—and that, for this and other reasons, he is a candidate who cannot win. The nomination was first informally tendered to Mr. OTTENDORFER, and he did precisely what any man who valued his reputation would have done, peremptorily declined it. The Convention fell back on BRENNAN'S nominee, Mr. LAWRENCE, simply because he was the only respectable candidate left them. Nothing can be more certain than the fact that Mr. LAWRENCE cannot secure the German vote, and the German vote holds the balance of power at the local election. It now remains for the Republicans, the Germans, and the great body of non-partisan Reformers in the City to unite upon a candidate who can win. We know of no bargains, and we shall be party to none, by which the Republican vote is to be frittered away on any nominee for Mayor, of whom Reformers of all shades cannot cordially approve. The Republican Party has frankly given a pledge, which it means to keep, that it is the party of reform. It utterly disclaims questions of politics in the filling of local offices, and is prepared to cooperate with all honest men in supporting a candidate for Mayor who is at once above reproach, and who can secure the support of the greatest number of organizations representing the cause of Municipal reform. It does not greatly matter who takes the initiative in this matter. One thing only is clear, that what is to be done must be done quickly. Although refusing to become a nominee of Tammany, Mr. OTTENDORFER has accepted, conjointly with Mr. HAVEMEYER, the nomination of the united German reform organizations. Either of these candidates, or any other having equal claims upon public support, would be acceptable to the great body of respectable voters. Only, let us have no waste of voting power. Let the Republicans present their candidate, and let the Committee of Seventy, or some other non-partisan body whose verdict all parties will be prepared to respect, make the requisite selection, and let the reform phalanx move forward with a solid front to certain victory.

Equally prompt action is desirable in regard to the Judiciary nominations. Tammany has shown the cloven foot in putting in the field for City Judge, a man so thoroughly incapable and so utterly unworthy of trust as GUNNING S. BEDFORD. It rests with the reform organizations of the City to avoid the gross scandal of re-electing such a man to a position of so much dignity and importance. The Bench must not be allowed to become a laughing-stock, any more than a reproach to the City. That a man whose legal acquirements rise but little above the level of a Tombs shyster should be put in nomination for City Judge, is precisely what might have been expected from Tammany Hall. No body of Reformers can afford to stultify themselves by making such a choice. They can get scores of men who would be as certain to fill the position better than Judge BEDFORD as they would be to beat him out of the field on election day. There is much to be done, and but little time left to do it in; so, Reformers, make haste with your nominations.

Gen. Dix and Reform.

We informed Gen. COCHRANE and his associate reformers, the followers of Messrs. TRUMBULL & Co. in the United States Senate, that they could best promote their objects in this State by voting for the Republican candidate for Governor; and we gave them a letter from the latter on the interference of members of Congress with appointments to office.

We now give them a letter from the same source, on the assessment of clerks in the public offices for electioneering expenses—another abuse which those gentlemen profess a painful anxiety to correct, and from which they may happily be relieved by supporting Gen. DIX for Governor.

It must be remembered that Gen. DIX was a Democrat when this letter was written, though denying that he was bound by the party allegiance to perpetuate official abuses. His letter to ANDRE FROMENT, the representative of Tammany Hall, speaks for itself. We believe the World published this letter a few years ago, with terms of warm approval. Will it not do so now? Nothing would benefit its reputation as an organ of public opinion more, or do greater service to the cause of reform:

POST-OFFICE, NEW-YORK, 15th October, 1860.

André Froment, Esq., Chairman of the Democratic General Committee:

SIR: I have received your letter soliciting a contribution from myself and the privilege of assessing the subordinates in my office, to raise funds in aid of the "Union ticket" and the "coming Presidential election."

Before your letter was received I had engaged to contribute as large a sum as I can afford in aid of that ticket, and it is hardly necessary for me to add that I shall support it cordially by all the efforts in my power.

In regard to an assessment on the subordinates in this office, I annex extracts from a letter written by me a few weeks ago, in reply to a similar application from another organization:

"I may say of a majority of them (the clerks in this office) that the assessments (proposed to be) made on them cannot be paid without pinching their families, who are entirely dependent on their salaries. I cannot consent to be the instrument of wringing from their necessities means indispensable to their daily wants. I think, moreover, that this system of assessing subordinates in public offices for political purposes, when they have, for the most part, no more than is sufficient to give their families the common necessaries of life, is all wrong. If men of means—lawyers, farmers, merchants, capitalists—whose property has so deep a stake in the maintenance of good government, will not consent to pay the legitimate expenses of our elections, we may as well abandon all hope of keeping up our organization by money.

Let me add that my contributions are made by me as a private citizen, and that I do not recognize the right of any committee to assess me as a Federal officer for political purposes."

I must refer you to these extracts for an answer to your letter.

I deem it proper to add that I know nothing more degrading to our public offices and those who fill them than the practice which has existed of sending political tax-gatherers to the doors of the pay room, to levy contributions on the clerks as they emerge with their hard-earned stipends. I cannot allow this office to be so dishonored. I intend, if I can, to restore it to the respectability which belonged to the earlier and better days of the Republic.

I shall be pleased to have my subordinates contribute voluntarily whatever they think they can afford to the support of the Democratic cause. But I cannot permit any forced contribution to be levied on them. On the contrary, I shall regard it as my duty to protect them from a system of political extortion disgraceful alike to the Government and the country.

I am, Sir, very respectfully,
JOHN A. DIX.

Our Hackmen.

The hackman ought, one would think, to be well satisfied with his position in life. He is seldom compelled to perform any manual labor, except the occasional hurling of trunks from his vehicle to the sidewalk, or the rare punishment of some captious old gentleman who has remonstrated against paying more than four times the legal rate of hack hire. He spends his days sitting comfortably on his box-seat, practicing the art of elegant blasphemy with casual car and omnibus drivers, and driving pleasantly about the City. For the time spent in these easy occupations, he is paid by the traveling public at a rate originally sufficiently exorbitant, but which has lately been increased in consequence of a well-managed strike, in which the hackmen united. Nevertheless, he is a dissatisfied man, and is now applying to the City authorities to secure the repeal of a law which for some years has deprived him of the excitement of mobbing the public at railway stations and steam-boat landings.

"Business first, pleasure afterward," is the evident motto of the hackman. Business, thanks to his recent strike, is at present in a state satisfactory to him, but he now pines for pleasure. He sees himself shut out from the sweet joy of mobbing the country clergyman through a crowd of rival hackmen, and bundling him triumphantly into his hack. He cannot capture the unprotected woman laden with multifarious bundles, and compel her to ride with him, under the pretext that from, say Forty-second-street to Forty-first-street, is a distance of twelve miles. He watches with sadness the escape of the economical old gentleman, who regards not the imploring whip of the seated hackman, but passes silently by in search of the cheaper street-car. Were the hackman to be permitted to seek out his prey in the ferry-house and the railway depot, none of these would escape him. He would hustle the public and tear its clothes with the enthusiasm of the ardent sportsman. He could revile in his most emphatic language the bold person who should decline to employ him, or he could commit his captives temporarily to the safe keeping of a friend, while he himself should chasten the impertinent rival who had ventured into a contest with him for the possession of an enviable clergyman, or a widow capable of being made to pay unusual tribute. While he is, at present, deprived of these pleasures, he feels that the zest has gone from life, and that the prosaic routine of swindling the passengers who may voluntarily employ him cannot compensate for the lack of excitement. Whereupon he comes to the City fathers for aid, and like a particularly impudent prodigal, demands that the traveling public be delivered up to him as an improved sort of fatted calf wherewith he and his fellows may daily make merry.

It is earnestly to be hoped that his demand will not be granted, and that the public will be saved from a renewal of the scenes which formerly made an entrance into the City something like the storming of an obstinately-defended town. Let the Aldermen remind him that pleasure is not the end of a well-regulated life, and that the peace of mind of the traveling public ought not to be sacrificed to the hackman's fondness for excitement. Moreover, experience proves that the hackman is not totally deprived of all pleasures, and that it is still within his power to amuse himself by robbing and assaulting his weaker fares. With these simple enjoyments he must content himself, and withdraw his selfish demand to have a wider freedom of assault secured to him by law. It would be a monstrous outrage upon the public to grant what he wants now, and we do not envy the Board of Aldermen if they render themselves responsible for this outrage.

MINOR TOPICS.

The Evening Mail protests against the two Bohemian "Clubs" setting their critics to work to make unjust comparisons between LUCCA and KELLOGG. It says:

> "No controversy was more needless than one about the respective merits of KELLOGG and LUCCA. Unlike in their peculiar gifts, styles and attractions, admiration for one does not imply the slightest lack of appreciation for the other. We should rather congratulate ourselves on the possession of two artists of such diverse excellencies, and give to each generous and handsome encouragement."

Exactly—and this was probably the reason why the Evening Mail of Monday copied into its columns an ignorant and stupid attack on one of the prima donnas, from a recently-started sheet called by the name of a Bohemian Club. The Evening Mail will, perhaps, do well to carry its precepts into practice, and not encourage a shameful trick while pretending to deprecate it.

The Bradford (England) Observer of Oct. 1, says that an American gentleman, Mr. GEORGE H. BOOTH, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., upon retiring from a business career in Bradford of some twenty years has, in addition to liberal gifts to the charitable institutions of the town, presented to it a life-size marble statue of RICHARD COBDEN, the cost of which will be over one thousand guineas. It is strange that a statue of COBDEN is not among the number already erected, and Mr. BOOTH showed an intelligent appreciation in selecting the subject for the ornament to the town which his generosity has provided. The Bradford Observer especially remarks on this, and expresses both the gratitude of the town and its sense of the eminent good taste of the giver in his choice of a subject.

We have left to us one line of American ocean steam-ships of which we have a right to feel proud—the line which connects San Francisco with China and Japan. Elsewhere the English screw steamers have driven our steamers from the ocean. And now it seems that the China steamers of the Pacific Mail Company are to follow the fate of other American ocean steamers. A new fleet of magnificent English ships is to be put on the same route. These vessels may not surpass in speed, comfort or safety the American steamers, but the former are propelled by the screw while the latter still adhere to the paddle-wheel. No line of paddle-wheel ships can successfully compete with a line of screw steamers; since the cost of running a screw steamer is vastly less than that of running a paddle-wheel ship. The American ships will either have to be replaced at once with screw steamers, or else the competition with the English lines will have to be carried on at a ruinous cost.

A Mr. WHITCHER, of Whitefield, N. H., has recently had a trick practiced upon him, which is certainly the best of the kind we have heard of for a considerable time. Having occasion for the use of a milch cow, the gentleman referred to bought what appeared to be a very good one at a neighboring market. As a proof of her suitability for the purpose intended, twelve quarts of rich milk were taken from her before a number of persons who claimed to be interested in the purchase and sale. The day after the animal had changed hands, Mr. WHITCHER'S dairy-maid undertook the task of milking, but failed utterly in the effort. According to the local chronicles of the "singular event," "not one drop of the lacteal treasure would she give down." Indeed it soon became evident that the "deceitful creature" had no appearance whatever of having milk. Mr. WHITCHER and his friends profess to be greatly astonished at this unaccountable proceeding on the part of the poor beast; but it is quite clear, from the circumstances of the case, that a false udder was used in the milking scene which so excited the admiration of Mr. W., and that it was quietly slipped off before the cow was delivered to her new owner.

During several years past the residents of South Kingston, R. I., have been blessed with a fair share of prosperity, without being troubled with much of a nature to disturb or annoy. A week or two ago, however, their patron saint having apparently deserted them, the monotony of their existence was varied by a series of afflictions of a more trying character than are usually visited even upon sinful communities. The first evidence of the saint's desertion came in the shape of a shower of stones which went crashing through the windows, demolishing everything that impeded its progress. This "phenomenon" was repeated until the novelty wore off. Then there was a lull, and just as confidence was beginning to be restored a new source of terror was developed. A great many persons were simultaneously made ill from drinking at the town wells. On examination, it was discovered that the water had been poisoned with white lead. This furnished an explanation of the stone throwing and other "phenomena," and destroyed the plausible theory that the work had been accomplished by disembodied spirits. However, as no arrests have yet been effected, the Kingstonians exist in a constant state of apprehension lest they may fall victims to some new scheme of their mysterious enemies.

The New Free Press of Vienna announces the return and pardon of a royal exile—the Archduke HENRY, cousin of the Emperor of Austria. The frightful crime of which this Imperial scion was guilty was committing matrimony with a singer, LEOPOLDINE HOFMANN, created by the sympathetic King of Bavaria Countess of WAIDECK. The recent death of the Emperor's mother, the unamiable Archduchess SOPHIA, who never forgave the mésalliance, and the urgent intercessions of the royal family of Saxony during the Emperor's recent visit to Pillnitz, have, it is understood, induced His Majesty is to extend his royal clemency so far as to permit the black sheep of the Imperial fold to return. He is, however, at present only to approach the hem of the empire, and to take up his quarters in the Tyrol, but, no doubt, as time gradually works the process of purification, he will be permitted to crawl humbly Viennaward.

BUSINESS MEN OF NEW-YORK ON THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The Condition of the National Debt of the United States—Further Reduction, Oct. 1, $16,-327,000.

The undersigned, merchants, bankers, and business men of New-York, respectfully submit the following statements for the information of all parties interested therein:

The Republican candidate for President of the United States is Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, who was unanimously named for re-election at Philadelphia, in May last.

At the commencement of Gen. Grant's first term of office, March 4, 1869, the National Debt was $2,525,000,000. On the 1st day of September, of the present year, there had been paid and canceled of the principal of this debt, $348,000,000, leaving a balance of principal remaining unpaid at that date, in accordance with the official statement of the Secretary of the Treasury, the sum of $2,177,000,000.

Of this amount $1,777,000,000 are represented in a funded debt, bearing interest in gold, while $400,000,000 remain unfunded in Treasury circulation.

Up to the close of the last session of Congress, the annual reduction of taxes, as measured by the rates of 1869, had been as follows:

Internal revenue tax	$82,000,000
Income tax (repealed)	30,000,000
Duties on imposts	58,000,000
Making a total reduction of	$170,000,000

The reduction of the yearly interest on the public debt exceeds the sum of $23,-200,000, of which $21,743,000 are saved by the purchase and cancellation of the six per cent. public securities.

A careful consideration of these results of a prudent and faithful administration of the National Treasury, induces the undersigned to express the confident belief that the general welfare of the country, the interests of its commerce and trade, and the consequent stability of its public securities would be best promoted by the re-election of Gen. Grant to the office of President of the United States.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Two-Story Cars.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Excuse me for saying that your suggestion of a second story to our street-cars is not a novelty. I made it myself as much as nine years ago to several stockholders and directors of the Third-avenue Road, especially to my friend, Clarkson N. Potter. Mr. Potter's objections were that the upper story would be unavailable for ladies, that Americans generally did not like "going upstairs" when they took a car, that the outside passengers would be exposed to bad weather, and if this difficulty were obviated by a second roof the car would be too cumbrous and heavy. I think he added something about greater liability to get off the rails and even a possibility of upsetting. His reasoning failed to convince me, but it was evident the company did not smile on the proposal.

While on this matter of transit, allow me to repeat once more what I have often said, that we want more water communication between the different parts of our island, and I could never understand why we have not got it.

CARL BENSON.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Oct. 14, 1872.

Judge Bedford.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I am glad to see you continuing your good work of reform by repudiating Bedford for Judge. My experience as a juror has convinced me, as it has many others, that he is totally disqualified for the position he holds. I do not mean to put him as low as Barnard and Cardozo, though he was put in by Tammany influence solely. You know more about that.

I was a juror last Fall. Although he joined in the popular cry of reform, it is evident he is not the man for reform. I remember a case in which his strong religious prejudices evidently overruled him, and he was about to quash a trial when half through; but the jury saw this, and insisted on hearing it further. I remember a juryman being grossly insulted by an underling attaché of this Court, and foolishly thinking it right to complain to the Judge, sought out Bedford. He was superciliously treated and no remedy found. In fact, insult was added to injury. Moreover, under Judges we all respect it is usual when a case or two is on and say two juries are impaneled to excuse the remaining jurors for the day, that they may attend to their business. Not so Bedford. He seemed to care for nobody but himself. Wrapped up in his own conceit, with about $100 salary for every day he held Court, what right had a juror receiving his moiety to this man's consideration? What is $2 to $100? We must have Judges we can respect. I trust some good man will succeed him. I care not what politics he is—only let us have dignity and knowledge, and, if possible, a gentleman.

I voted for Bedford when he was elected, but want a man to fill any Judgeship. So many others will say who, as well as myself, had the misfortune to be

THE VAN SYCKEL POISONING.

Arrest of the Supposed Guilty Parties Yesterday.

Medical Testimony at the Coroner's Inquest—The Deceased's Statement to the Physician Regarding Her Husband.

The funeral of Mrs. Van Syckel, who died on Saturday night last from the effects of arsenic administered to her in a cup of tea, took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of the family, corner of Love-lane and Henry-street, Brooklyn. The remains were interred at Flatbush Cemetery. The funeral was very largely attended. Ever since Mrs. Van Syckel's death, her husband, John Van Syckel, and the family cook, Johanna O'Leary, have been under close police surveillance. Van Syckel accompanied the remains of his wife to the funeral. The woman O'Leary remained at the house. After the funeral had left the Van Syckel residence, Detective Videtto, of the Central Office, arrested the cook, Johanna, and took her to the First Precinct Station-house. Detective Corwin, of the Central Office, acting under orders, rode on the carriage Van Syckels was in, and as soon as it returned to the house arrested him, and locked him up also in the First Precinct Station-house. The arrests were made under warrants issued by Coroner Whitehill, who, last night, commenced the inquest in the case. Van Syckel and Johanna O'Leary, the cook, were present. Van Syckel is apparently about fifty-five or fifty-seven years of age, and presented a cool and unconcerned appearance. The cook is a stupid-looking Irish woman, seemingly about fifty or more years of age.

Dr. James Crane, of No. 63 Clinton-street, who attended Mrs. Van Syckel, was called, and testified as follows:

I was called first to attend Mrs. Van Syckel at one o'clock on Friday morning, the 11th inst.; her daughter and son, a boy about twelve years of age, came for me; met Dr. Colton at the house, and received from him substantially the same information he has given here this evening; went into the room where Mrs. Van Syckel lay; found her very restless, lips red, cheeks slightly tinged with blue, eyes reddened, respiration labored, and of a sighing character; hands and upper extremities cold, and no pulsation at all in arteries of the wrist; inquired of her what she had eaten during the day: she said she had taken nothing but fried oysters, and in the evening nothing but some tea and toast. (Witness here stated that the information he was rehearsing was given, part by the mother and part by the daughter, who was sitting near her.) Soon after drinking the tea she vomited and purged simultaneously, which commenced not more than three minutes after taking the tea; the vomiting continued almost incessantly for two or three hours: her bowels were moved without her being conscious of the fact; the symptoms I saw were more those of extreme exhaustion and prostration than anything else, and were the consequence of the vomiting and purging: that was the general condition of the patient as I found her; Dr Colton and I returned to the consultation-room and reviewed the case in all its symptoms and could find no conclusive evidence at the time that the patient was suffering under the influence of any of the metallic poisons, and yet our minds were not entirely free from the suspicion; as to the treatment, we could not decide what antidote to use, because we were ignorant of the nature of the poison, if there was any; treated the patient with stimulants up to two o'clock A. M.; saw her again about nine o'clock A. M.; she had vomited but little during the night; she had an evacuation of a remarkable character, such as indicated intense inflammation, such as could only be produced by a violent irritant; she asked me the next morning, "Doctor, do you think that Van Syckel could have poisoned me; you know Van Syckel is a very bad man; you heard him say once that he only married me that I should take care of him: and he has told persons lately that he wanted to get rid of me; Doctor, I have not lived with Mr. Van Syckel as his wife for more than two years; all that time he has been going with strange and bad women, and long before that he went with bad women; Doctor, he would not go for you yesterday morning (meaning at 1 o'clock that morning;) Mary Ellen called in and asked him to go for the doctor; what do you want with the doctor? he said; I won't go till morning, clear down stairs; now, Doctor, do you think Van Syckel has poisoned me? he is a very bad man." I continued the stimulants, but knew that she was dying, and told her daughter that if there was anything to be done they had better attend to it; she had spoken of making her will in order that Van Syckel should not get any of her property; told her that the will had better be made at once; without any delay, while her mind was clear; Dr. Colton had caused the cup of tea from which Mrs. Van Syckel had drank to be kept, and it was brought to me at my request; I tasted it, and rinsed my mouth with it and then spit it out; in a few moments I felt an increasing warmth in my mouth, accompanied by a peculiar sensation; it also left a rough coating, like metal, on my teeth; procured a clean bottle; poured the tea into it and took it home; afterward took the tea to Mr. Ronillion, chemist, for analysis; he tried it by Marshall's hydrogen test, and obtained an abundant precipitation of arsenic. [Witness here exhibited to the jury two small porcelain plates on which the test was made, showing the arsenical deposit.] At one time during my visits the daughter, Mary Ellen, said that when the tea was taken to her mother in the pitcher, she, after drinking a little of it, complained of its bad taste; she (the daughter) immediately took the pitcher down-stairs to the cook and asked her why she sent her mother such stuff as that was; the tea was then emptied and the pitcher rinsed out with clean water.

Dr. F. H. Colton, who was associated with Dr. Crane in the treatment of Mrs. Van Syckel, was also called, and gave testimony substantially the same as the above.

The inquest was then adjourned and, will be continued further.

BOARD OF APPORTIONMENT.

The City Finances—The Payment of the Boulevard Laborers.

The Mayor, the Controller, the Commissioner of Public Works and the President of the Department of Public Parks, constituting the Board of Apportionment, met yesterday, in the Controller's Office, the Mayor in the chair. The Controller was authorized to issue bonds of the City of New-York to the amount of $250,000. The resolution did not state for what purpose the money is to be raised, but it is understood to be for the purpose of paying off the unpaid pay-rolls of the Boulevard laborers.

In pursuance of chapter 841 of the laws of the last Legislature, a resolution was passed directing the Controller to pay George H. E. Lynch, late a Clerk of the Superior Court, the sum of $2,190.

The sum of $7,340 was appropriated under the head of "Donations, 1872," to refund the amount paid for assessments for the widening of Laurens-street by the missionary society of the church situated in Laurens-street, and transferred from the appropriation entitled "Extra Contingencies," and ordered to be paid by the Controller.

The sum of $30,000 was appropriated as an additional appropriation for "cleaning and supplies of County offices." The amount stated to be necessary for such purpose to the end of the year is $39,445. County Auditor Earle sent a communication in reference thereto to the effect that the sum required might be reduced, according to a plan recommended by him, to $31,805.

The Mayor announced that the special meeting called for Thursday next, for consideration of the claims for appropriations of charitable institutions, has been postponed to Friday, at 1 o'clock.

When the resolution for the appropriation of the $250,000 was under consideration, Mr. Van Nort elicited the fact that, when he sent the pay-roll of the Boulevard men—the pay-roll ending Oct. 5—the sum of $22,000 was lying to the credit of the account. Mr. Van Nort then expressed his astonishment that that sum had not been disbursed among the men as far as it went, instead of waiting until the Board of Apportionment would assemble.

Mr. Van Nort stated that he was never informed of the condition of the account, by the Department of Parks, when the transfer took place, as authorized by the Legislature; nor was he informed to that effect by the Finance Department.

He was informed by Deputy Controller Storrs that there was a balance to credit enough to pay the roll, and when the roll was sent to the Finance Department, the Controller sent him (Mr. Van Nort) a communication saying that there was no money to pay it. Now he was astonished that the $22,000 which he had just learned was in hand, was not paid to the men instead of allowing them to wait.

Mr. Green replied that the Finance Department knew how to conduct its business.

The Pennsylvania and National Railroads Contest.

The promised new railroad war between two of New-Jersey's grant corporations was formally opened at Trenton yesterday. Last week the Pennsylvania Railroad Company applied to Vice-Chancellor Dodd for an injunction to prevent the National Air Line Railway Company from proceeding with the work on their road between Trenton and Elizabeth. The appellants alleged that the charter under which the connecting link making a series of roads a through line was being constructed had been secured by fraud, and that the charters under which the entire road was being built were being used for purposes foreign to those for which they had been issued. The Chancellor refused to issue an injunction, but issued an order for the Air Line Company to show cause why they should not be enjoined, and instructing them that they should continue their operations at their peril in damages in the event of an after-issue of an injunction. Yesterday was the day fixed for the first hearing of the case. The printed arguments were read by the counsel for the Pennsylvania Company, and copies given to the Chancellor and to the counsel for the National line. The Chancellor then fixed the 20th inst. as the time for hearing the answer of the respondents. The complaint simply rehearses the matters presented on the application for an injunction, and the reply which is now being made up will, it is said, contain, in addition to a denial of the complaint, a complete exhibit of the manner in which the old New-Jersey and United Railways and their successors have controlled the successive Legislatures, and matter of a similar character.

Musical.

ITALIAN OPERA.

"Faust" will be sung at the Academy of Music this evening. The performance will be the last for the present of Gounod's opera, and will offer, therefore, an opportunity which ought not to be overlooked to enjoy the singing and acting of Mme. Lucca in a character she portrays, from a lyric as well as a dramatic stand-point, to perfection.

OPERA BOUFFE.

The season of opera bouffe at the Olympic Theatre, so brilliantly commenced on Monday, will include but one more representation of "La Périchole." This may be attended to-night. To-morrow, "La Grande Duchesse" is to be given.

Dramatic.

WOOD'S MUSEUM.

A highly sensational play entitled "The Gambler's Crime," with Mr. Dominick Murray in the principal character, was produced at this establishment Monday evening. The piece is adapted from the French, and the plot is almost the same as that used by Mr. Charles Reade in his novel of Foul Play. The characters are numerous, comprising Murty McNally, a Mulberry-street Milesian, (Mr. Murray,) Clarence Gray, a Southerner, (Mr. T. W. Keene,) Capt. Wilton, commander of a United States surveying steamer, (Mr. Mestayer,) Silas Sharp, the scoundrel of the play, (Mr. G. C. Charles,) Mesdames Rocheveuse and Perichole, (Misses Wood and Arnot,) and Helen Wilton, the heroine, (Miss De Forrest.) In a somewhat lengthened prologue is told the tale of the murder, and in the successive acts we behold the shipwreck, the life of the castaways on the lonely island in mid-ocean, their return, the solution of the mystery and final retribution. The piece abounds in striking situations, and the dialogue is sufficiently lively, if it possesses no other merit than vivaciousness. Mr. Murray, who has become a favorite with New-York audiences, was well received Monday, and he acted with even more than his usual energy and spirit. On Friday next he will have a benefit night, and he will doubtless be welcomed by an overflowing house. "The Gambler's Crime" is to be repeated every evening of this week, "Dick Whittington and his Cat" being given at the matinées; in the burlesque Misses Markham, Belle Howitt, Lisa Weber, Emma Grattan, and Messrs. Atkins, Keene and Sheldon, appear.

Miscellaneous.

OLIVE LOGAN'S LECTURE.

Among the well-known lecturers who ought not to be forgotten, just because we have some distinguished strangers among us, is Miss OLIVE LOGAN. She has been for some time before the public, and we believe she has never failed to interest and amuse them—achievements for which she deserves to be kindly remembered. Just now the "new arrivals" are all the fashion, but that is no reason why old friends should be forgotten. Miss Olive Logan will deliver a lecture on "Successful People" next Friday evening, at Steinway Hall, and there is no doubt that it will be well worth hearing. It is an entirely new lecture, and Miss Logan will doubtless find a large audience prepared to listen to it.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Indians Have an Interview With the Indian Commissioner—Work of the Congressional Committee—Professional Jurymen.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The delegations of Indians now in this city had an interview today with Gen. Walker, Indian Commissioner, at the Interior Department. Gen. Walker addressed the three delegations, first together, telling them the desire of the Great Father was that they should educate their children and prepare them to live like white men, so they could provide food for themselves after the products of the chase are exhausted. The Chiefs paid very close attention, but some of the young braves and squaws seemed to consider the conference a kind of bore, and expressed indifference in the listless, careless attitudes they assumed. The delegations here speak three different dialects, and three interpreters are required. Each delegation is arranged about its interpreter, and when a sentence is given them all the interpreters begin to speak at the same time, each repeating to his own group. Each delegation will now have a conference with the Commissioner relative to its peculiar necessities.

WORK OF THE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

The Republican Congressional Committee is gradually contracting its operations in the way of printing documents, having for the most part enough prepared and printed for the remaining three weeks of the canvass. The prospects of certain success have had little effect, however, to decrease the energy of work on the Republican side. Republican politicians think it is now the time to give a coup de main to the Liberal coalition, and make its defeat its destruction. Vigorous work is continued for that end.

PROFESSIONAL JURYMEN.

Around the Criminal Court of this city there is now and then found a professional juryman. Some time ago there was an instance of one of these men having got on a jury several times in succession, and when called to the attention of the Court he was dismissed. A few days ago a colored man named Jenkins was convicted of murder, and John T. Donaldson was one of the jury. Barney Wood was Friday evening similarly convicted, and Donaldson was one of the jury. He was put on the jury again today in another murder trial. Wood has petitions for a new trial on affidavits which declare that Donaldson, before the trial and in presence of several witnesses, said: "Barney Wood's trial comes up next Wednesday. This Court and jury will convict them all. Wood will share the same fate as Jenkins." Still he had sworn, when examined as a juryman, that he had not formed nor expressed an opinion of Wood's guilt.

A NEW SYSTEM OF FRAUD.

Secretary Boutwell has addressed the following letter to the Third Auditor of the Treasury:

SIR: You are requested to suspend action upon claims for stores and supplies furnished ostensibly for the use of the army in all cases where the required returns have not been made by the receipting officer. This course is made necessary by the fact that ex-officers of the army have in some instances given their official certificates and receipts for forage and other supplies, dating them years before the time when they were actually made, in order to bring them within the scope of their official authority, thus leaving an open door for collusion and fraud in the absence of so important a guard as the official returns. I am, Sir, &c.,

GEO. S. BOUTWELL.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT.

The President has made the following appointments of Commissioners in Philadelphia to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of American independence: George B. Loring for Massachusetts, in place of J. Wiley Edmunds, resigned; Patrick A. Largey for Montana, vice Henry L. Warren, resigned; John McNeil and Samuel Hays for Missouri. William C. E. Thomas has been appointed Postmaster at Green Bay, Wis.

THE TAX ON MALT LIQUORS.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has received a memorial from a committee of brewers of New-York, Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, and also the members of the General Committee of the Brewers' Association of the United States, representing the entire brewing interests of the country. They call the Commissioner's attention to some of the injurious effects which will most certainly arise from the introduction and use of stamp-cancelers proposed to be attached to all brewers' casks and other packages, for the purpose of canceling or destroying stamps used in the collection of the duty on fermented liquors. The memorialists say the tax on malt liquors is collected almost to a dollar. Why, therefore, by the enforcement of the stamp-canceler regulation put the Government to a very large expenditure in introducing and maintaining the same when no corresponding benefit is evident? They estimated the number of casks, barrels and hogsheads in use by brewers to be 3,000,000. The stamp-cancelers, guaranteed only for two years, would therefore cost $3,000,000. To supply the losses that would occur from breakage, rust and other causes, necessitating their exchange by the Government, would be at least one-fourth in that time. Here there is an expenditure of $3,750,000 to obtain very inadequate results, one-fourth of which sum of $3,750,000 will be a loss entailed upon the brewers by reason of loss and damage while under their care, supposing them to be legally liable for their safe return. They claim they ought not to be subjected to such an annoyance, for whenever the tax shall so decrease as to show that fraud is being practiced, the Government will find among them those who will be ready first to assist in discovering the same, and then to make it known to the Government.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Rear-Admiral William Rogers Taylor, commanding the naval force at the South Atlantic station, Brazil, reports to the Navy Department that on the 13th of September, Gen. Mitre, Envoy Extraordinary from the Argentine Republic to Brazil, visited the flag-ship, and was received with the usual honors.

Real-Admiral Hillyer, of the British Navy, had arrived at Rio Janeiro on the armored ship Repulse, accompanied by the steam-sloop Tenedras, and was to sail for the Pacific Sept. 21. On the 19th of September the Emperor of Brazil visited the Repulse, and was received with Imperial honors. The United States ships in port fired salutes of twenty-one guns.

The United States ship Ossipee, Commander J. N. Miller, arrived at Rio Sept. 15, from Valparaiso, and probably sailed for New-York on the 23d of September. The Ticonderoga probably sailed on Sept. 25 for the River Plata. The Wasp was at Montevideo Sept. 10. The health of the officers and crews on the station is good.

THE TURF.

Fall Meeting of the Kingston Driving Park Association.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The first annual Fall meeting of the Kingston Driving Park Association began today. Two thousand dollars in premiums are offered, and the meeting will continue for three days, with two races each day. The meeting begins most successfully, forty entries having been made. Today a large crowd was in attendance, and owing to the admirable arrangements of the managers, everything passed off in a most satisfactory manner.

The first race today was for a purse of $400, for horses never beaten in three minutes, best three in five. Nine entries were made for the race, which was warmly contested and a fine one, and was won by J. J. Hornbeck's b. h. Billy. Time—2:37, 2:38, 2:41, 2:39.

The second race was for a purse of $300, for horses no better than 2:40, best three in five. The entries were five in number. The race was the finest ever trotted on our Kingston course; but, owing to the lateness of the hour, was not completed. F. J. Child's g. g. Chatham Boy made the best time, winning the second heat in 2:34¾. The race will be concluded to-morrow forenoon. The race to-morrow will be for purses of $250, for horses no better than 2:45, and a purse of $300, for horses no better than 2:30. The best stock from many points in the vicinity will participate.

The Prospect Park Fair Grounds—First Day of the October Meeting—Fine Weather and Brilliant Trotting.

The October meeting of the Prospect Park Fairs Grounds Association began yesterday, under the most auspicious circumstances. The fine bracing atmosphere, together with the prospect of excellent sport, induced the ladies to attend the initial day of the meeting in large numbers, while the sterner sex formed legions of spectators. The track was in splendid order. The sport began with a match for $500, under saddle, between John Murphy's b. g. George W. Patterson and C. S. Green's s. g. Wallace, but the latter horse was out of condition and not fit to make a race. Patterson won the first heat without trouble, trotting the quarter in 39½ seconds, and the half in 1:18½, and finished the mile in 2:44¼. Wallace was drawn before the second heat, and the race was ended.

THE 2:25 RACE.

The first regular race of the day was for the purse of $1,500 for horses that had never beaten 2:25, which had the following eleven entries: Lottery, Dauntless, Chas. E. Loew, Sensation, Gray Eddy, Gray Mack, Crown Prince, Susie, Sea Foam, Nonesuch, and Lady Maud. All of these but Chas. E. Loew came to the post. In the betting Crown Prince sold for $100, Lady Maud $70, Sensation $30, and the field $75. But the knowing ones soon found out that they had made a mistake, for the splendid trotting of Sensation sent them to hedging. In the first heat there were six false attempts before they got the word, with Nonesuch in the lead, which she held at the quarter-pole by ten lengths, and eight lengths at the half; but on the lower turn Sensation outtrotted all his competitors, and won the heat by a length. In the second heat Nonesuch again got away first, but Sensation passed him on the turn, and was first past the quarter-pole, and kept the lead to the end, winning the heat by three lengths. In the third heat Nonesuch again got away first, but Sensation soon caught her, and led a length at the half-mile pole, and won the heat and race easily by three lengths. The contest throughout was close and exciting, and occasioned great enthusiasm.

SUMMARY.

PROSPECT PARK FAIR GROUNDS, Tuesday, Oct. 15.—Purse $1,500, for horses that have never beaten 2:25; mile heats, best three in five, in harness; $900 to first, $400 to second, $200 to third.

The second event was the three-year-old Colt Stake, worth over $1,406. There were but two starters, viz.: Geo. C. Hitchcock's b. c. Highland King and Chas. Backman's br. c. Prospero. The race was won by Prospero, who double distanced his competitor in 2:33½, although handicapped with nearly fifty pounds overweight. This was wonderful trotting, and stamps Prospero as the best three-year old ever shown.

Business in General Sessions Yesterday.

The following cases were among those disposed of yesterday, before the Recorder, in the Court of General Sessions: Antoine Reithwisch, a sailor, was tried for felonious assault upon John Boetz, a fellow-sailor, on the morning of Sept. 3, in Chatham-street, the prisoner being one of six men who stabbed Boetz. The prisoner denied his guilt under oath, but was found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon, with intent to do bodily harm, and was remanded for sentence.

Joseph Mason, against whom there were four indictments for larceny, pleaded guilty to an attempt. The plea was accepted, and Mason was sentenced to two years and six months in State Prison.

Peter McLaughlin pleaded guilty to grand larceny, there being two indictments against him, and was sentenced to five years in State Prison.

John McCarthy pleaded guilty of an attempt at grand larceny, and was sentenced to two years and six months' service in Sing Sing. John Doran also pleaded guilty to the same crime, on another indictment, and received the same sentence.

John Wilson was tried for stealing a package from a colored messenger, representing himself as an expressman who would deliver it at its destination. The evidence was conclusive, although the prisoner swore to his innocence. He was sentenced to three years in State's Prison.

James Boardman, Dennis Shay and Richard Redding were tried for the theft of ten bags of coffee, worth $388, from the bonded warehouse of Marshall S. Driggs, on South-street, on the 13th of July. Redding was tried first, and found not guilty.

An Erie Train Collides with a Horse-Car.

A Lake View hore-car, loaded with passengers returning from a land sale, was crossing the track of the Erie Railway at Paterson, when it was struck by a freight-train which was backing down. The car was crushed and thrown from the truck, but fortunately only two persons were hurt. Mr. S. M. Freeman, of Orange, had his arm broken, and Mrs. Montment, of No. 315 West Thirty-fifth-street, was slightly cut about the head. The driver of the car made the proper stop before driving upon the track, and received the signal to proceed, so the blame of the accident is attached to the employes of the Railroad Company.

A NEW MONOPOLY.

Trouble Among the Night Scavengers—A Contest Before the Board of Health—Petition from Property-Owners.

For several months past portions of the weekly sessions of the Board of Health have been devoted to the solution of the question as to the best sanitary means to be employed in emptying privies, cesspools, &c., and removing their contents from the City. The vexed question has given rise to considerable discussion, and has resulted in a controversy between the night scavengers employed under the old system and a company recently organized for the purpose of carrying on the business on an alleged improved plan. This company is known as the Manhattan Odorless Excavating Company, and the war between the exponents of the old and the new system is now being carried on before the Board of Health, by means of applications for licenses and permits to clean out noxious cesspools, and petitions from citizens pro and con.

The old system of removing night-soil is probably familiar to all. The contents were dipped into tanks, carried through the hallways of the residences, and emptied into the water-tight carts. From thence it was taken to the dumping-ground on the river front, and transferred into scows. This process has been in vogue in this City for many years past, and no innovation was attempted until quite recently. The business has gradually fallen into the hands of a number of our German fellow-citizens, who, until the formation of the Manhattan Odorless Excavating Company, completely monopolized the occupation. There is a great deal of capital invested in the business, principally in the purchase of horses and carts, the latter, on account of their weight and peculiar construction, are unfitted for any other purpose than that for which they were built and had been used. Owing to the unpleasant and unwholesome odors developed during the removal of the night soil, the operations of scavengers were restricted to certain hours of the night.

Several months ago the attention of the members of the Board of Health was called to the invention of an air-tight apparatus designed for the emptying of sinks, and which, it was claimed, would effect the object of cleaning the vaults and removing the contents without allowing the escape of any noxious or unwholesome odors. The apparatus consists of a force pump to which is attached lengths of India rubber hose, through which the contents of the vaults are drawn by the action of the pump into large barrel tanks on wheels. All the aparatus is air-tight, and from the upper portion of the tank projects a pipe leading to a furnace in which a charcoal fire is lighted. The end of the hose is placed in the vault, the pump is set working by manual labor, and a stream is drawn through the hose into the tanks. The noxious gases escaping through the pipe in the upper part of the tank, are conducted through the charcoal fire, where they are consumed. In this manner it is claimed that the apparatus will empty vaults quicker and more effectually than by the old system. The members of the Board of Health were invited to witness the operation of the machine, and Dr. Moreau Morris, then City Sanitary Inspectdr, reported strongly in favor of the adoption of the new system in place of the old plan. A permit was granted to the new Company to empty vaults and remove night-soil at any hour of the day or night, and at a recent meeting of the Board of Health an ordinance was adopted requiring all night-soil to be removed from the City in air-tight receptacles only. This at once gave the new Company a monopoly, and roused the opposition of the entire body of night-scavengers, who found that their business was at once taken out of their hands. On the part of the latter class, it is claimed that the new machine does not do the work of cleaning the vaults and removing the contents as effectually as their system. It is asserted that only the liquid matter in the vaults is drawn into the receptacles by suction, and that the solid and insoluble matters are removed in tin cans, which are not any more air-tight than the old-fashioned carts, thus violating the ordinance which, the night-scavengers claim, was adopted in the sole interest of the Manhattan Odorless Excavating Company. But the chief cause of complaint is the hurried manner in which the ordinance was passed, making a complete change in the business without due notice to the parties most interested, and thus giving a monopoly of the business of removing night-soil to the new Company. Their apparatus is patented, and the Company have refused to sell the right to use or manufacture similar machines, and until some person succeeds in inventing a machine which will answer the purpose without conflicting with the Company's patent, the entire business will be in their hands.

Another great objection to the new system is that the Company, having a monopoly of the business, can regulate their charges to suit themselves, and no matter how exorbitant they may be, the property-owners are compelled to submit, as they cannot employ any other person to do the work. The owner of a house being notified that the vault requires cleaning, and unless the cleaning is done within a certain specified time he is liable for a penalty of $100 and the costs of the suit, which the Board of Health institutes against him. On inquiry, he finds that the Manhattan Odorless Excavating Company are the only persons who are permitted to do the work, under the existing regulations, and he must either employ their apparatus at whatever price they may choose to demand, or allow himself to be sued and mulcted in the sum of $100.

The above are the main features in the controversy between the night scavengers and the Company. At the meeting of the Board of Health, today, a petition signed by a number of property-owners will be presented, in which the signers set forth that they "earnestly ask the repeal of the ordinance recently passed by the Board relative to the cleaning of sinks and privy-vaults, requiring said sinks and privy vaults to be cleaned by air-tight apparatus. That the practical effect of the ordinance has been to give the werk of cleaning all sinks and privy-vaults to the Manhattan Odorless Excavating Company, who, on account of the monopoly thus given, are enabled to charge the property-owners an excessive price, while, at the same time, they utterly fail to perform their work in as thorough a manner as under the old system, and the work as performed by the Company is a greater nuisance at and about the privies than heretofore. That the said Company, while claiming to empty the said sinks and privy-vaults by an air-tight apparatus, in reality take up and remove the contents of the sinks and privy-vaults in cans, which is practically the same manner in which the work has heretofore been performed. The petitioners pray that the ordinance may be so amended that the work may be performed by other parties as well as by the Excavating Company, and that the property-owners may be allowed to give the work to such parties as will do it best, and not be compelled to give the work to a Company who charge an excessive price for work which they do not properly perform."

Fires Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Smith, occupying apartments in the tenement-house in the rear of No. 11 Rivington-street, went out, leaving her two small children locked up in her room. During her absence the children, while playing with matches, set fire to the furniture in the apartment. The screams of the little ones attracted the attention of Patrolman Lorrigan, of the Tenth Precinct, who burst open the door, rescued the children, and extinguished the flames.

A fire occurred yesterday morning on the upper floors of the building No. 63 Prince-street, occupied by G. Schoenman, manufacturer of jewelry cases. Damage to stock, &c., $8,000; insured for $6,000 in the Pacific, Germania, and one other Company. The first floor is occupied by Conradi & Lauten, manufacturers of fancy leather goods; loss, $2,000. The building is owned by Wm. Kennedy; damage, $1,000; insured for $1,800. The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The general result of the business transacted at the Exchange yesterday, (Tuesday, Oct. 15,) was not as satisfactory as was hoped for, nor was the success met with, such as the merits of the realty offered should have commanded, for in many instances the properties were withdrawn without sales being effected, while the majority of the legal auctions proposed were adjourned. The following is a review of the proceedings:

Muller, Wilkins & Co., at public auction, sold four lots, each 20 by 100.11, situate on the south side of One Hundred and Thirteenth-street, [illegible] feet west of Third-avenue, for $2,500 each, Terence Farley being the purchaser; also announced that three lots same size, on One Hundred and Twelfth-street, in rear of above, billed for sale yesterday, had been disposed of at private contract. The same firm also offered at auction the five and a half-story marble front store and lot No. 259 Canal-street, between Broadway and Elm-street, which was withdrawn upon a bid of $65,500, and the leasehold premises No. 22 Henry-street, withdrawn upon a bid of $4,000.

William Kennelly, at public auction, sold two three-story and basement frame houses and lots located on the east side of First-avenue, between One Hundred and Twelfth and One Hundred and Thirteenth streets; (lots each 26.8 by 95, houses 55 feet deep,) for $8,100 each; purchaser, Louis Seibert. The same auctioneer, at a Sheriff's sale, also disposed of the right, title and interest of a Mrs. Coulter in and to a house and lot on the north-east corner of Ninth-avenue and Sixty-second-street for $1,100, over and above incumbrances, the purchaser being Henry McGuckin. What these incumbrances were it was impossible to learn, as the auctioneer was in ignorance, and they were variously stated at from $6,000 to $10,000. The legal action in the case grew out of one of the reversed judgments of the late Judge McCunn.

Joseph McGuire, by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of Geo. W. Hardie, Esq., referee, disposed of tenement property on the east side of Columbia-street, 200 feet north of Rivington-street, embracing a lot, 25 by 100, with two three-story and basement brick buildings thereon, front and rear, respectively, for $13,000, the buyer being Samuel Schuster.

B. P. Fairchild, under a Supreme Court foreclosure order, Adrian H. Joline, Esq., referee, sold a plot of four full lots situate on the north side of One Hundred and Twenty-sixth-street, 175 feet west of Seventh-avenue, to Thos. J. McCahill for $3,800, over and above a mortgage amounting, with interest, to $9,686. Total price realized $13,486. The same auctioneer also adjourned the following auctions: Legal sale, same referee as above, of one lot on south-east corner of Madison-avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-third-street, adjourned to Tuesday of next week, Oct. 29; legal sale, E. S. Caldwell, Esq., referee, of house and lot on East Thirty-fourth-street, near First-avenue, adjourned to Tuesday, Oct. 29.

James M. Miller, at public auction, offered for sale the three-story and basement brick house and lot known as No. 212 Thompson-street, east side, between Bleecker and Amity streets, for which bids to the amount of $21,900 were made, but no transfer of title was effected. Mr. Miller also adjourned the legal sale of six houses and lots, three each on West Forty-third and West Forty-fourth streets respectively, 325 feet west of Tenth avenue, to Nov. 2. Goodenough & Weber also adjourned the legal sale of two houses and lots on First-avenue, between One Hundred and Twentieth and One Hundred and Twenty-first streets, until the 31st inst. Nothing further worthy of note occurred. In reference to the sales made yesterday, if any, by J. Cole, at the Commercial Exchange, Brooklyn, no report has as yet been received. And in regard to the suburban sales held yesterday, namely, at Paterson, N. J., by A. D. Mellick, Jr., & Bro., and by Jere. FIRST MORTGAGE
7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS

85 AND ACCRUED INTEREST.
INTEREST PAYABLE IN NEW-YORK, LONDON AND FRANKFORT.

This road will connect JACKSONVILLE, on the Chicago and Alton Railroad, with MOUNT VERNON, and will furnish the Counties of Morgan, Sangamon, Macoupin, Montgomery, Bond, Clinton, Marion and Jefferson with facilities long needed to transport their crops to market.

At Virden, where the deposits of bituminous coal are seven feet in depth, a large business will be created so soon as cheap transportation is assured by the construction of this road to accessible markets.

Thirty Miles from Jacksonville to Airden are already completed and fully equipped. Fifty miles will be finished in time to move the Autumn crops.

THE CHICAGO AND ALTON R. R.,
THE INDIANAPOLIS AND ST. LOUIS RAILROAD,
THE TERRE HAUTE RAILROAD,
THE VANDALIA AND ST. LOUIS RAILROAD,
AND
THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.,

Act as feeders to the road at various points.

Its connection, also, with the important roads now centering at Mount Vernon and Evansville must also secure it a large and remunerative traffic.

The road forms a part of a through route from St. Louis to the sea-board.

Running through a section of country thickly settled and producing large quantities of grain and lumber, with not an acre of waste land to be found anywhere in proximity to the road, its local traffic alone will amply secure the cost of building.

The issue of bonds is limited to $20,000 per mile, and we offer only $600,000 on the thirty miles of road already completed and in successful operation.

When desired, the bonds will be registered with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

In view of the above facts, we recommend these Bonds on account of their ABSOLUTE SAFETY, and regard them as, in every way, a choice security. Pamphlets will be furnished on application.

I., B. & W.
EXTENSION RAILWAY
First Mortgage 7 Per Cent. Convertible
GOLD BONDS,
AT 90 AND INTEREST,

Issued by the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railway to aid in building its EXTENSION line West, in a direct line from Champaign (185 miles) to the Mississippi River at Keokuk, and a branch from White Heath (32 miles) to Decatur, all in the State of Illinois. The bonds are secured by a first and only mortgage on the EXTENSION, now being rapidly constructed in the most thorough manner by able and experienced contractors who represent a capital of several millions of dollars, which insures the last rail being laid at an early date. About 60 miles are already finished and 110 miles graded; the whole line, 217 miles, will be completed early in 1873. We have been connected and entirely familiar with the I., B. & W. Railway from its early organization. It was completed in the Autumn of 1870, and has developed rapidly into a SUCCESSFUL AND WEALTHY CORPORATION, having a large revenue from its largely increasing business. With the EXTENSION it will be one corporation, with 420 miles of road, located in a commanding position in the heart of the best portion of the country. The counties on the line of the EXTENSION in 1870 had a population of 242,330; valuation of real and personal estate, $181,000,000; bushels of grain raised, 27,000,090; value of farm products, $25,570,000, and live stock, $18,349,000; to which may safely be added 15 per cent. to represent the present population and value. THE COUNTIES ON THE OLD LINE AND THE EXTENSION TOGETHER CONTAIN A POPULATION OF NEARLY THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION, AND A PROPERTY VALUATION EXCEEDING $400,000,000.

From these statistics it will be readily seen that the EXTENSION will have a Local Business that will make it a complete success. In addition to this it will have the entire Through Traffic of the Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska Road, connecting with it on the Mississippi River, and extending West to the Missouri, 300 miles, where it connects with the Midland Pacific in Nebraska. These two corporations, and also the Peoria and Rock Island (91 miles,) and the Davenport and St. Paul (300 miles,) although separate corporations, ARE CONTROLLED IN THE INTEREST OF THE INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND WESTERN RAILWAY, and, practically, will be a united line of more than 1,200 miles, the through business of which will pass over the I., B. & W. This is an East and West trunk route and has no parallel competing line. The Eastern connections at Indianapolis are the Pennsylvania Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Bellefontaine, Lake Shore, and New-York Central, and other roads centering at this point. From the Sea-board to the West and North-west distances are materially reduced via this system of roads; so much so that it cannot fail to be the popular line for travel and business. Liberal subscriptions to the stock were made by towns and counties on the line of the EXTENSION, and the remainder has been taken by experienced railroad men and Eastern capitalists.

These facts cannot fail to make the bonds, which will be issued only on completed road, take high rank among the best railway securities.

The bonds are $1,000 each, convertible into stock at par, at the option of the holder, and may be registered free of charge.

Coupons, payable January and July 1, free of tax. The bonds may now be had from banks and bankers throughout the country.

We offer them at present at 90 and interest, and recommend them strongly to our friends and investors as one of the safest and most desirable securities on the market.

Bonds delivered free of express charges. Maps, pamphlets and circulars furnished on application.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE DIStrict Court of the United States of America for the Eastern District of New-York, held at the United States Court-rooms, in the City of Brooklyn, on the 19th day of July, in the year of our Lord 1872. Present—Hon. Charles L. Benedict, District Judge.—In the matter of the petition of THE NORWICH AND NEW-YORK TRANSPORTATION COMPANY.—On reading and filing the petition of the Norwich and New-York Transportation Company, the owners and claimants of the steam-boat City of Norwich, her engine, tackle, apparel and furniture, setting forth, among other things, that by reason of the facts and circumstances stated in said petition, and by reason of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the suit against them therein mentioned, and the rules adopted by the said Supreme Court to govern cases of like character, they are entitled to and claim the benefit of limitation of liability, provided for in the third and fourth sections of the act entitled "an act to limit the liability of ship-owners and for other purposes," passed March 3, 1851, and praying that this Court will cause an appraisement to be had by one of the Commissioners of this Court of the amount of value of the interest of the said petitioners as owners respectively in such steam-boat or vessel and her freight pending for the voyage upon which she was employed and for which the said petitioners are liable, and that, upon the coming in of the report of the said Commissioner, an order may be made for the payment of such valuation into Court, or for the giving of a stipulation by the said petitioners with sureties for the payment thereof into Court whenever the same shall be ordered, and that upon the payment of such valuation into Court, or upon the filing of such stipulation, that the stipulation heretofore given by the said petitioners be canceled, and the said petitioners and their sureties thereon be discharged from all liability thereunder, and that this Court will issue a monition against all persons and parties claiming damages for any loss, destruction, damage, or injury arising out of the said collision, fire and loss, citing them to appear before this Court and make due proof of their respective claims, at or before a certain time to be named, in said writ, not less than three months from the issuing of the same, and that public notice of such monition be given as in other cases, and such further notice as this Court in its discretion may direct, and that this Court will make an order restraining the further prosecution of all and any suit or suits against the said steam-boat or against the said petitioners as the owners of the said steam-boat in respect to any such claim or claims for damages occasioned by the collision, fire and loss in the said petition mentioned, and restraining all further proceedings, except as to such appraisement, until the further order of this Court, and for such further and other order of relief as to this Court may seem proper and right, and as this Court may think proper to grant;

Now, on motion of J. W. C. Leveridge, of counsel for said petitioners, it is ordered, that in conformity with the said act of Congress, the said decision of the said Supreme Court and the rules of the said Supreme Court made in pursuance thereof, all persons and parties interested show cause before this Court at the Court-rooms thereof, at No. 189 Montague-street, in the City of Brooklyn and State of New-York, on the third Wednesday of November, 1872, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why an appraisement should not be made of the amount of the value of the interest of the said petitioners as owners respectively in said steam-boat City of Norwich and her freight pending for the said voyage upon which she was employed, and why the petitioners should not have such other, further or different relief or order in the premises as may seem meet and proper, and in the meantime, and until otherwise ordered by this Court, the further prosecution of all or any suits against the said petitioners as owners of said steam-boat for or on account of any of the matters in the petition mentioned and referred to are hereby restrained and stayed.

And on like motion it is further ordered that the Clerk of this Court give notice of this order to all persons interested, by publishing a copy thereof in the Brooklyn Daily Union the New-York Daily Times and in the Norwich Bulletin, for fourteen days prior to the return of such order, by mailing copies thereof to all parties interested named in said petition and schedules annexed, or whose names may hereafter be furnished to him, addressed to them at their respective places of business or residences, so far as he may ascertain the same, and as to parties whose places of business or residence may not be ascertained, the same to be directed to them at the City of New-York, and by serving, or causing to be served, a copy of the order on the Proctors or Attorneys of all parties named in the petition as having commenced legal proceedings for the enforcement of their claims.

CHARLES L. BENEDICT.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR DIMENSION STONE REQUIRED IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE NEW GOVERNMENT BUILDING AT ST. LOUIS, MO.

OFFICE OF SUPERVISING ARCHITECT, TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21, 1872. }

Sealed proposals will be received at this office until 12 o'clock M. of the 26th day of October, 1872, for furnishing and delivering at the site of the proposed Government building at St. Louis, Mo., all of the dimension required for the exterior of the building.

The species of stone from which a selection will be made will be confined to granite, marble and sandstones, and the qualities especially insisted upon will be uniformity of color and texture, durability, and the capacity for working under the chisel or hammer.

A sample block, 12x12x12 inches, showing on each face a different kind of cutting, and on one the natural fracture of the stone must be submitted with each bid.

No stone that has not been tested by actual use as cut stone in buildings for at least ten years will be considered, and absolute proof that it has been so used for that period must be furnished.

The stone must further have a good grain and be free from all discoloring substances, and the quarry from which it is procured must be fully opened and capable of furnishing the quality and quantity desired within one year.

About 400,000 cubic feet, more or less, will be required, the actual average of the stones cannot now be given, but will approximate forty feet, the largest stone containing about 200 cubic feet.

The stone will be ordered on a schedule of net sizes, in order that the contractor may make proper allowances for cutting in the quarrying, and on this schedule payment will be made allowing an addition of one inch to each face on granite and marble stock and of one-half inch to each cut face of sandstone.

Bidders will state how soon they can commence delivering the stone and the amount per week they can deliver; the stone and the amount per week they can deliver. They will also state the average and maximum size of the stones that can be obtained from their quarry.

No bids will be received except from the owners or lessees of the quarries from which the stone is proposed to be furnished, and a certificate from the Recorder of the County in which the quarry is situated that the bidder is the owner or lessee of the quarry must accompany the bid.

All proposals must be made on and in full accordance with the printed forms to be obtained on application at this office or from the Superintendent, Mr. Thomas Walsh, St. Louis, Mo., and must be accompanied by a penal bond in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, ($50,000) that the bidder will accept and perform the contract if awarded to him, and give bond therefor in the penal sum of one hundred thousand dollars, ($100,000) and a valid and binding lease of the quarry to the Government as security for the faithful performance of the contract, the lease to take effect upon the failure of the contractor to comply with the terms of the contract, said lease to authorize the Government to take full possession of the quarry and work it at the expense of the contractor in case of default.

The Department reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to divide the contract and use two or more kinds of stone.

Proposals must be inclosed in a sealed envelope, indorsed, "Proposals for dimension stone for the new Government building, St. Louis, Mo.," and addressed to A. B. MULLETT, Supervising Architect.

Large Number of Distinguished Guests Present.

Addresses by Hon. Geo. Wm. Curtis, Mr. Froude, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Wm. Cullen Bryant, Henry Ward Beecher and Other Eminent Gentlemen.

Last evening at Delmonico's, in Fourteenth-street, a distinguished gathering of citizens greeted Mr. James Anthony Froude, the English historian. The occasion was a complimentary dinner given by the eminent publishers, Messrs. Scribner, Armstrong & Co., to Mr. Froude. Among the guests were Ralph Waldo Emerson, Rev. H. W. Beecher, W. C. Bryant, Dr. T. D. Woolsey, Dr. E. H. Chapin, Dr. H. C. Potter, rector of Grace Church; Dr. Noah Hunt Schenck, rector of St. Ann's Church, Brooklyn; Dr. H. W. Bellows, Hon. A. D. Chamberlain, of the New-York World; E. C. Steedman, Dr. Edward Eggleston, Dr. W. H. Ward, Col. John Hay, L. C. Davis, of the Philadelphia Enquirer; Noah Brooks, Dr. H. M. Field, of the Evangelist; Mr. Goodrich, of the Boston Post; Edward King, of the Boston Journal; C. D. Warner, author of My Summer in a Garden; J. R. Thompson, of the Evening Post, and others.

As soon as the dinner had been discussed Mr. Curtis called the company to order, and introduced the guest of the evening, with the following remarks:

ADDRESS OF MR. GEORGE W. CURTIS.

As I think of the occasion which brings us together, and look about the table at this festive company, I remember what Sir Philip Sidney wrote to his brother three hundred years ago: "To what purpose should our thoughts be directed to various kinds of knowledge unless room be afforded for putting it into practice, so that public advantage may be the result." Himself a scholar, he thus defines the highest function of scholarship. He flouts the old tradition that made the scholar a pedant, and declares him to be a power. For the scholar receives only that he may give. He is not a grave in which learning is buried, but a fruitful soil in which it is sown as seed, and springs up a hundred fold in a beneficent harvest. The scholar transmutes knowledge into influence. Hospitable to every thought—generous, sympathetic, catholic; unweariedly seeking only the truth and unhesitatingly declaring it, he puts his knowledge into practice so that public advantage is the result. Hostile opinion may brand him as a heretic. He may see his own book burned by his own university. Pur si muove is still the answer of the scholar; and as the moon, by celestial influence, draws the restless waters of the sea, so, by the resistless laws of the intellect, he lifts the world higher and higher upon its way. Such a scholar, gentlemen, who is personally a stranger to most of us, but a friend to all of us, who vindicated the right of honest thought, despite his Alma Mater's frown, and who, carrying the torch of exploration into the obscurer passages of history, has thrown new and disturbing light upon what were supposed to be settled facts, is the guest whom we honor to-night—who sits by my side, and whom we welcome with all our hearts as he lands upon our shores. And as we greet him, it is perhaps needless kindness to tell him at once what he will so soon discover—that he has arrived among the most modest and meritorious people in the world, unless—for I see that Judge Daly is looking at me—unless it be that people of whom he has come to speak to us. A year or two before our war a distinguished American editor was in Paris, and was looking one day, with a fellow-American, at the pictures in the Louvre, and talking of their country. "The fact is," said the editor, "that what we need in America is a darned good licking." A foreigner who stood by and heard the remark smiled eagerly, as if he knew a nation that would like to administer the castigation. "Yes, Sir," said he complacently, rubbing his hands with appetite and joining in the conversation, "that is just what you do want." "But the difficulty is," continued the editor to his friend, as if he had heard nothing, "the difficulty is that there's no nation in the world that can lick us." So we turned to and licked ourselves; and we shall all behave a great deal better for it hereafter. This was the modest view that we formerly took of our merits, and I am sure that our friend will find us just as bashful as ever. We are of the opinion of the Yankee sailor in the harbor of Naples. A United States ship had anchored there, and the King and a brilliant party of noblemen came off to visit her. There was nothing to distinguish them but their uniforms, and to the honest eyes of Yankee sailors one gold-laced man was as much a king as another; and, as one of the party tripped and disappeared, a sailor stepped up to an officer and, touching his hat, said, "Please, Sir, one of them 'ere kings has tumbled down the hatchway." And so I think our friend will discover that, since certain events in this country, we are disposed to say to him, "Please, Sir, all them 'ere kings have tumbled down the hatchway." But this modesty will not surprise him. It will seem to him the most natural thing in the world. For he is an Englishman and we are chips of the old block. If our national pride crows a sonorous Yankee-doodle-doo, it is because it is fed upon the traditions of Magna Charta, and of the crowning mercy at Worcester. Our fathers, who gave this country its character and direction, were Englishmen. Plymouth Rock is but a stepping-stone from one continent to another in the great march of the same historic development. When James Otis thundered against the writs of assistance, it was John Pym defending the ancient rights of Englishmen. When George Washington drew his sword against King George, it was John Hampden once more riding into the field against King Charles. The road is straight from Runnymede to Bunker Hill; and at Yorktown the England of the Stuarts and of slavery surrendered to the England of Alfred, of Wickliffe and of John Milton. If Jonathan Swift had been made Bishop in Virginia, as he hoped, or had Coleridge and Southey crossed the sea to found the Pantisocracy which their young enthusiasm dreamed upon the banks of the Susquehanna, Gulliver, the ancient mariner, and Thalaba would have belonged to the American branch of English literature, as the books of Bryant and Emerson, of Longfellow and Lowell, of Motley and Bancroft, now do. Had the parents of our guest but stepped across the sea, I should ask you to join me in honoring the American historian, Mr. Froude. It is the old Norse blood leaping in our veins, as in his, that makes our hearts thrill with his national lyric:

"With thunders from her native oak
She quells the floods below,
As they roar on the shore,
When the stormy winds do blow.
When the battle rages loud and long,
And the stormy winds do blow."

A great, indomitable heart beats in every line. It is the battle-cry of our kindred—of our fellow-rovers of the sea. God forbid that the stormy winds of war ever again blow us into hostile collision, and grant that the hands just clasped at Geneva may be clenched in a friendly grasp that the whole world cannot sever! But I know, gentlemen, that you are waiting for other words than mine, and I remember that when all would both gladly speak and hear, our speeches must be "short studies upon a great subject." Indeed, one word expresses what we would say. The first salutation which our fathers received in their own language upon this continent was that of the Indian Samoset to the Pilgrims—"Welcome, Englishmen!" And it is echoed in this latest greeting which we offer to an English scholar, in token of the friendly sympathy and interest of a new nation—"Welcome, welcome to America!"

ADDRESS OF MR. FROUDE.

When, a few years since, an English squadron was engaged with the forts on the Peyho, one of our ships ran on a bank, and was suffering severely from the Chinese fire. An American frigate which was in the river came to her help—the commander saying briefly that blood was thicker than water. That blood was thicker than water sent Dr. Kane into the Arctic Circle in search of Sir John Franklin. That blood was thicker than water induced the chivalrous editor of the New-York Herald to dispatch Mr. Stanley into the heart of Africa to seek and find David Livingstone. The same feeling has created in the English nation a more genuine delight in the success of a private enterprise of an American citizen, than if Livingstone had been discovered and brought home by the agents of our own societies. Col. Wentworth Higginson, whose acquaintance I had the honor of making last Summer in London, told me that what most struck him in England was, that he found himself among his own countrymen. The longer he stayed among us, the more he felt that he was among the same people whom he had left behind him in New-York and Boston. I myself, gentlemen, when I landed last week, had not a single personal acquaintance in this city; and I find myself not only among my own people, but among warm and generous friends.

My literary career has been a checkered one. I have been connected from the beginning with subjects on which passion is still boiling. Those who handle hot coals are apt to burn their fingers, and I have now and then burnt mine. Literature, however, has also brought me many pleasures. Of all these pleasures, not one has given me so much gratification as the recognition which my writings have been so fortunate as to receive in this country. Long ago your historical societies at Philadelphia and Boston were among the first to hold out a hand to me. Your reception of me here this evening, gentlemen, would have been the most agreeable experience in my literary life, were it not that I feel oppressed by your goodness to me. When I see myself here surrounded by the most brilliant representatives of American literature—by men whose names have been household words wherever the English language is spoken—I am sure that you are forming expectations of me which I shall inevitably disappoint. We are all of us so constituted by nature that we can swallow a large measure of flattery, but the digestive power even here has its limits. I know too well the measure of my own capabilities. You make me feel like Falstaff before the battle of Shrewsbury—"Would 'twere evening, Hal, and all were well." Would it were a fortnight hence, when you have heard what I have to say to you, and your good opinion of me had remained unchanged. But, gentlemen, it is not only for this that I owe you my acknowledgments; I have to thank you also for giving me an opportunity of explaining generally the purpose of my present visit to this country. In one sense indeed it needs no explanation. It has been the dream of my life to come to America, and I am only delighted that I have found an opportunity of realizing it. Occupied, however, as I am at home in many ways, I do not know whether I should have succeeded in my wish had I not combined with it another purpose—a purpose which presented itself to me at last in the shape of an obligation. What that purpose is I can best make clear by telling you how I came to form it. Some eighteen months ago, at a London breakfast-table, it was mentioned that one of the most prominent Fenian leaders was making a tour in the United States, dilating upon English tyranny and the wrongs of Ireland. No doubt the text is a pregnant one, and it probably did not suffer in the commentary. Irish patriotism has many a charge to bring against England which can be but too well substantiated. England cannot complain if Irishmen have a long memory. There are, however, features in the long tragical story, which, if they do not palliate, at least explain and make intelligible much that we could wish undone,—features which naturally enough the Irish overlook, yet which should be borne in mind, if an impartial judgment is to be formed on the controversy. I was aware how great an influence America possesses in Ireland. The judgment of America has more weight in Ireland than twenty batteries of English cannon; and that judgment ought not to be pronounced after hearing only the counsel for the plaintiff. I said hastily, I think I will go over and give some lectures on the other side. I spoke without serious intention; but the idea having once presented itself to me gathered form and fixity. I am not an Irishman. I do not own an acre of land in Ireland, but circumstances during the last thirty years have thrown me much among the Irish people. They are a people who either attract strongly, or repel strongly. I myself had always felt myself specially drawn toward them. When at college, I used to spend my vacations wandering in the Irish mountains. I have lived in peasants' cabins for months together. I was once laid up with severe illness in the wilds of Mayo, and the poor creatures treated me with a tenderness which I shall never forget. Their history attracted me. Their condition personally interested me. I knew Ireland before the famine, I knew it in the famine. I was in Ireland afterward, in 1848, in the Smith O'Brien insurrection. Since that time I have been an Irish tenant. Indeed, I may say I am an evicted tenant. I have been turned out of my holding, and can sympathize with the special wrong of the country, as I was very unwilling to go. But my landlord simply wanted to live in his own house and attend to his duties. If all evictions were as innocent as mine, there would be little to complain of, and when I go back I hope to find some other place in the same county which will suit me as well.

When I was writing my History of England, I was led to look closely into the conduct of the English Government toward Ireland in earlier times. When that book was off my hands, I began to examine into the action of the celebrated penal laws of the last century. I had read what very few persons have read, the secret correspondence between the English and Irish administrations during all that period. I felt, in short, that I had something of importance to say, and I wished to say it. I would not act in such a matter without advice. I consulted my friends and their answers were generally unfavorable. One said I should be mobbed by the Irish. Another, that he supposed I should tell the truth—there was nothing so unpalatable as truth—I had better let it alone. Others urged more gravely that it was unbecoming and improper to discuss questions of our own domestic politics in a foreign country. There were some, however, and those who knew Ireland best, who said to me, go, and my own instincts said go. As to the Irish, I have always been on good terms with them, and I believe I always shall be. I hope to spend a large part of the rest of my life among them, and if they have anything to say to me, they will have an opportunity at home. As to truth, it may be unpalatable, but there is a prejudice that a little of it is not unwholesome. For the more grave objection if I were in Parliament, if I belonged to any political party, even if I was an Irish landlord, I admit that it would have weight. It might be supposed that I was indirectly pursuing some party object. But as far as I have any public character it is simply as a writer of books. I address myself equally to all English speaking people wherever they are, and there can be no possible reason why I may not address them as well with my tongue as my pen. Once for all, however, I insist that England and America do not stand to one another as foreign nations—foreign in the sense that France or Russia is foreign to us both. Politically separate we may be, but we cannot shake off our relationship. Sprung from a common stock, with a common history, common language, common laws; charged as we both are by Providence with the carrying out of that grand principle of ordered liberty, on which, as we believe, the amelioration of mankind depends, we may be rivals, but rivals only as to which of us shall represent these principles most wisely and most effectively. We may quarrel, and when we quarrel it will be with the peculiar bitterness which distinguishes family disputes. But the very acrimony is itself an evidence of the closeness of the tie which binds us. For the sting rises from the supposed absence of the special good-will which each of us conceives we have a right to look for from the other. Be our political position to each other what it may—and for myself I hope and believe no angry word need ever more be exchanged between us—it is inevitable that we must retain an ardent interest in each other's future, and must remain connected by links of feeling such as cannot exist between either of us and any other Powers. And on this peculiar subject of Ireland, America has a special interest and a special right to express an opinion, owing to the peculiar relations which have sprung up between Ireland and herself. Those relations are not the growth of yesterday. During the present century several millions of Irish Catholic peasantry have found a home and a shelter here, and the Irish people left in the old country have responded to your hospitality with a passionate and boundless gratitude. America is the land of promise, the land flowing with milk and honey in the imagination of every Irish Catholic child. In the last century and in the century before, when the Irish Catholics remained fixed at home, there was a no less important Protestant emigration to this country. Every season for more than a hundred years they came over in shiploads, the very pith and marrow of the colonists who had been planted in Ireland by the Puritans—the sons and grandsons of the Cromwellian settlers, the Ulster Presbyterians, the Calvinist immigrants, English, Dutch and French, who went thither after the last conquest and were driven out by the intolerance of the Episcopalian laws. They came here, like the Pilgrim Fathers, in search of liberty, which was denied them at home. In the war of independence they made England rue the madness which had banished them. And in that same war of independence their friends in Ireland, the Protestants who remained there, were the stanchest friends which America possessed. You are thus connected equally with both the parties whose presence in Ireland constitutes the Irish difficulty. You can wish no ill to either. You are peculiarly fitted to mediate between them, while you are so circumstanced that the judgment of America, expressed through the Press, through public speeches, in the thousand ways in which national sentiment can make itself felt, will carry a weight which is almost incalculable.

Gentlemen, it is now 360 years since an Englishman was sent over from London to examine and report upon the causes of Irish discontent. It was a time when, if ever, the Irish had the management of their own affairs. The result was universal misery, and the conclusion was that the cause was hopeless. "Our Fathers," this writer said, "could find no remedy." They had more wit and wisdom than we. How, then, can we find it? Wise men say that "the herb that will heal the wound did never grow." Nearly 400 years have passed away; we are still seeking for that herb and cannot find it. I know not if it grows anywhere, but I yet believe that though no growth of the old hemisphere, it may be discovered in the new. It is that plant which I have come in search of. I believe it to be American opinion. Ourselves at our wits' end, if America will counsel England what to do that she has left undone, what wrong she can yet redress that Ireland may justly complain of, England, I am certain, will listen respectfully, cordially, gratefully. If, on the other hand, a time is ever to come when political agitation is to end in Ireland—when Celt and Saxon, Protestant and Catholic, are to live side by side in peace and quietness, it will be when America tells the Irish that they have no longer a grievance which legislation can redress, and that they must depend for their future prosperity on their own industry.

The Chairman then introduced Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson, who spoke as follows:

ADDRESS OF MR. RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

I confess, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, that I have accepted your invitation to this banquet in a good faith and humble and glad belief that my friend, Mr. Froude, of old times, was coming here, but not to be myself made in any manner the subject of extravagant eulogy, in the poetic or satirical spirit [laughter] of the President. [Laughter.] To that I have nothing to reply, excepting that I know nothing of it.

It gives me great pleasure, certainly, to be present at this very highly proper reception of our guest. I had the great pleasure many, many years ago—it was twenty-four years ago—of meeting him when he was new from his Exeter College, and amid very valued friends, Mr. Clough, of Oriel, honored in all parts of this country where intelligent young scholars are known; Mr. Arnold, of this same College, also of Oriel, whose fame is also in all our mouths; Mr. Stanley, of Exeter; Mr. Palgrave, and other able young men with whom I became most happily acquainted on my visit at Oxford. And I rejoice very much to see Mr. Froude's face here, with all our added acquaintance with him in his books. His history is well known, I know, to all good readers in this country, and he has established the importance of his own opinion, of his own judgment in those books. I think he has taught us much. He has shown at least two eminent faculties in his histories—the faculty of seeing wholes, and the faculty of seeing and saying particulars. [Applause.] The one makes history valuable, and the other makes it readable—interesting. [Applause.] Both those qualities his writings have eminently shown. I think we are indebted to him for a power which is eminent in them, the discretion which is given us—the speeches, the language of the very parties whom his history records. The language, the style of the books, draws very much of its excellence from that habit, that practice, of giving the very language of the times. He knows well that the old English people and Irish people of whom his history records the events, did not write or speak in the style of the Edinburgh Review or the North American Review, but that they spoke a stern and dreadful language, when words were few and when words meant much. So that the language is like the cry of the soldier as the battle commences, or the cry of the fugitive when the battle turns against him. It is a pithy and wonderful language. If you remember, it is Shakespeare that says, "When breath is scaat, it's very seldom spent in vain." That is the very language of the poet. [Applause.] And that is the language which his taste and judgment has had the skill to secure, giving an emphasis and power to his history, which is not familiar to English and Irish history. It gives me great pleasure to see Mr. Froude, an old friend, because he recalls the time of my own visit, four-and-twenty years ago. It was at Oxford, when I knew his contemporaries, his fellow-students at Exeter and Oriel—Mr. Arnold, Mr. Stanley, Mr. Clough—alas, he died too early for us all—Mr. Palgrave and many other young men, then of great promise, and some of them who have more than fulfilled that promise. It gives me great pleasure to remember that time, and to see, that if something has fallen, much has survived, and that we have here one of the best representatives of just that culture and just that power and moral determination which was exhibited and felt by all those young men. But I will not detain you. [Applause.]

Mr. Wm. Cullen Bryant was then introduced amid applause, and spoke as follows:

ADDRESS OF MR. WM. CULLEN BRYANT.

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN: I thank you very much for the kind manner in which you have received this toast. I came here this evening under a promise that I should not be called upon to speak, but now that I am on my legs I can say one word. I look about me and I see persons distinguished in various walks of life—distinguished for splendor of talents and for eminence of virtues. They will need no chronicler of genius to tell the story of their lives. Their talents, what they have done for their generation and their virtues will shine through the foggiest medium. The humblest and rudest chronicler would suffice to tell the story of their greatness. When they die, therefore, it will not be necessary that he who relates the story of their lives should share in the eminence of their talents. But when my time comes to go—and I am in no hurry, and I hope that all who now listen to me will live a thousand years, [laughter and applause]—when I come to die, if the story of my life should be deemed worthy to occupy a page in a biographical dictionary, I hope to fall into the hands of some one who will chronicle the brief history of my life—for it must be a brief history—with the same talent, the same indulgence, as has been shown by the eminent chronicler of the life of Harry the Eighth of England, [laughter and applause,] endowed with the same skill and the same perspicacity in searching out extenuating circumstances, [great laughter and applause,] and the same power, the same magic, let me say persuasion, in setting them forth, which he has shown. I will not propose the memory of that remarkable monarch, inasmuch as you will find it embalmed and enshrined in the luminous pages of our illustrious guest, the guest of the evening. [Great laughter and applause.]

The Chairman then introduced Mr. Beecher as one who was shy of applause, whom it was a cruelty to call out before an audience so select. Mr. Beecher spoke as follows:

ADDRESS OF REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN: That modesty which has been alluded to is certainly native to me. [Laughter.] It began early; it has been cultivated assiduously, and, I may say without vanity, with some success. [Laughter.] Still, my ear has always been sensitive to the call to duty, and I therefore consent to make a few remarks this evening, with some personal applications. I am glad, for one, to see Mr. Froude. I am glad to take him by the hand. I like him. His is one of the few books that, being voluminous, I have read to the last letter. And I made it a matter of conscience to believe every word that there was in it. [Laughter.] So that, if in his visit he lacks a friend, let him come to me, [laughter,] for I am as his other self in that matter. It so happened that in my busy life I could not sit down and read, as many can. Our friend, the Chairman, has nothing to do, and he can read by the month together, [laughter;] and the others that have spoken are men of infinite leisure. I was obliged, therefore, to read his book in what might be called the odds and ends of time—in the five minutes before my dinner, in the ten minutes after my dinner. It has given the flavor for more than two years to the dinners that I have eaten at home, and it now occurs to me as one of the most refreshing of books, because it is mixed up with good company, and good viands, and good time generally; and I have redeemed the time that otherwise would have gone to waste, with the reading of this memorable, and, as I believe, lasting history of one of the most important periods of English life. I am glad that Mr. Froude has come to America to see what he could not see at home. It is possible, gentlemen, to sprout an acorn in a greenhouse, but it is not possible to make an oak grow there—there must be more room. [Applause and laughter.] I recognized in his dealings with the earlier periods of history those principles which were so dear to us, which underlay our national life, which, as it were, are the iron in our blood; and when I heard that he was coming, I said to myself, "Now he will see a great deal." Thank God he won't have to ride around to see our charities with the Aldermen, and take dinners with them. We shall have very little architecture to show him. We have no ruins, such as he could see in the old land; but we have a genuine common people. But the timbers on which the planks have been nailed are old English oak, [applause,] and the principles, which are nowhere more nobly illustrated than by his researches and writings, are the principles on which this nation was founded and its policy determined, and which are expanded in the constitution and in the laws, and which have come out in the lives of the common people of America. And it is only right that he should see what those principles amount to, not where they are cribbed by insular space and narrowness, or held in by conflicting institutions, or neutralized by being planted with things not congenial to them, but where they have had free course to run and be glorified. [Applause.] We can show him a newspaper-reading people whose newspaper reading leads them to read books. He will find that our men are made intelligent by this continuous culture, sturdy by their religious faiths, and now having grown to be patriotic since we have a country which we are no longer obliged to apologize for. Now we have State after State touching each other, rising in rapid succession, until they reach the Pacific Ocean, all of them characterized by some special difference, and yet all united in a sort of generic harmony. We are not revolutionary; we do not propose to be propagandists of our opinions. We spread the experiment of our national life, springing from English seed largely, out before the nations of the earth, and say, "Is there not a better way for you." And I think I can say that the feeling of America is not so much a feeling of opposition to thrones and monarchies and ecclesiastical domination as it is in sympathy with the common people of the globe. I would add one or two words in regard to our indebtedness to that people whom you have come, in part, to vindicate, and whom in part you have come to enable us to judge. We have had some reasons for impatience. [Laughter.] The Irish blood is too nimble for us sometimes. [Laughter.] The Irish genius is per-tervid. In that and in various ways it has been troublesome, but it is the trouble which all men have with a soil which is super-fertile. We have many weeds, but it is because we have a soil so productive that weeds will grow in spite of us. But where would America be today if it were not for her peasantry, her working men? Let me tell you that when once the blood is mixed enough, the Irish blood will be as good a blood as our future generations need to have in the times of America's greatest glory. [Applause.]

ADDRESS OF HON. CHARLES P. DALY.

Hon. Charles P. Daly having been introduced was greeted with applause. He said:

I appreciate the purpose, as stated by the President, that has brought our guest to this country. I remember, and others present will remember, that the most impartial historian of the unhappy land of my ancestry was an Englishman; and if Mr. Froude shall be able, in the course of the lectures which he proposes to deliver to our people in America, to do anything to assist in any manner the relations of Ireland with the country with which she is connected, so as to bring about more amity between them, he will have accomplished the highest labor of a historical student, by bringing the benefit of historical research to the guidance and improvement of the present generation. [Applause.]

REMARKS OF REV. E. H. CHAPIN.

At the conclusion of Judge Daly's remarks, the President introduced Rev. Dr. E. H. Chapin, who alluded to the recent arrival of not only the guest of the evening, a student and writer of history, but Prof. Tyndall, one of the most eminent representatives of science in the Old World. He regarded it as a noteworthy and significant fact, that we had among us these two eminent representatives of two great tendencies of human thought, which were, finally, believed to coalesce. He had long admired the intellectual courage and independence which Mr. Froude had displayed, and he took as great pleasure now in welcoming him personally, as he had before been gratified and delighted by the perusal of the books he had written.

REMARKS OF PRESIDENT WHITE.

President Andrew D. White, of Cornell University, was next introduced and spoke at considerable length. He referred to the state of advancement of historical knowledge here, and the facilities for historical instruction in the universities of the English-speaking nations, as compared with those of others—the German, in particular—a comparison not favorable, so far as the number of professors was concerned, to the former; but the increase within a few years, he said, was such as to give great encouragement. He gave some amusing incidents illustrative of the ignorance upon historical subjects of graduates of American colleges—an ignorance that would be impossible, if proper facilities were afforded them during their college course.

OTHER ADDRESSES.

Rev. Dr. Bellows and Rev. Dr. Schenck, of Brooklyn, having been introduced and made brief addresses, the President introduced Thos. Wentworth Higginson, Esq., who alluded to his recent visit to England, his acquaintance there with Mr. Froude and also with another eminent man who was a near friend of the guest of the evening, Thomas Carlyle. He told an anecdote that occurred within his own experience of the large heartedness of the author of Sartor Resartus, and declared his conviction that this country had few as sincere friends in the Old World as he.

The President, in introducing Dr. Holland, (Timothy Titcomb,) spoke of the improved relations between authors and publishers over those which formerly existed. The condition of the authors was in every respect improved. In the absence of an international copyright law between this country and Europe, American publishers had liberally paid the foreign authors whose works they publish, and Mr. Froude could himself testify to the satisfactory relations that existed between himself and the house of Scribner, Armstrong & Co., his publishers here. Mr. Curtis then proposed the health of that house, and called upon Dr. Holland for a speech. Dr. Holland referred feelingly to the late Mr. Charles Scribner, who was a friend, he said, of the author, as he himself had had occasion to experience. When, said Dr. Holland, during the last months of Mr. Scribner's life, he went to Europe in the vain hope of regaining his lost health, I said to him: "Don't fail, when you are gone, to go to Luzerne, for it is the nearest heaven of any spot I ever saw." He went to Luzerne, and he proved my statement true in a way which I did not anticipate, for he went to heaven from that very spot.

The Chairman then dismissed the guests, who, after a cordial hand-shaking, dispersed.

Letters of regret were received from Prof. H. W. Longfellow, J. G. Whittier, President Eliot, of Harvard; Rev. Dr. Hodge and President McCosh, of Princeton; W. D. Howells, J. R. Osgood, Hon. J. H. B. Latrobe, of Baltimore, and others. Subjoined is the letter of John G. Whittier:

AMESBURY, Sept. 26, 1872.

Messrs. Scribner, Armstrong & Co.:

GENTLEMEN: Your note of the 18th awaited me on my return last night from North Conway. I hasten to say that few things could give me greater pleasure than to meet your distinguished guest, whose reputation as a writer is co-extensive with our English tongue. But I fear it will not be in my power to take advantage of your kind invitation. If I cannot be with you in person, will you allow me through you to join in the hearty greeting which I am sure awaits the liberal and enlightened historian who comes among us, not so much a stranger as a long-known and ever-welcome friend? Apart from his personal claims on our regard, he comes to us as a representative of that dear old mother-land from which we are no longer estranged by unhappy differences. I am sure he will unite with us in the hope that no lingering feeling of distrust or jealousy between the two nations may survive the peaceful arbitrament of Geneva. I am, very truly, your friend,

JOHN G. WHITTIER.

PROF. H. W. LONGFELLOW.

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 20, 1872.

GENTLEMEN: I have had the pleasure of receiving your letter and your kind invitation to the dinner in welcome of Mr. Froude, and regret extremely that it will not be in my power to accept. It would give me great pleasure to be present on such an agreeable occasion, but my engagements will render it impossible for me to be away from home at this time.

Begging you to accept my thanks and my regrets,
I am, gentlemen, yours truly,
HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.

The Dorian Murder—Acquittal of the Prisoner.

James Keilly, indicted for the murder of David Dorian, in September, 1871, whose trial was begun on Monday, was again at the bar yesterday in the Court of General Sessions, before the Recorder, and the case was concluded.

Frank Raymond, the first witness, testified to having gone with Dorian to Jones' Wood on the 7th of September, 1871, and they two were with William Robb at 8 in the evening; witness saw a boy quarreling with a woman who kept a pie-stand; Dorian remonstrated with him, and a fight took place between the two, both moving off. In a little while Dorian came staggering back, crying out, "I am stabbed to the heart." The night was dark and witness could not identify Keilly, the prisoner, as being the young man fighting with Dorian.

Caroline Heinleim, of Seventy-first-street, was at her father's refreshment-stand in Jones' Wood where the stabbing took place, on the night in question. Three young men came to the stand and one of them tried to steal a piece of pie. Her brother and Mr. Dorian interfered, and a fight took place. A moment after she saw Dorian bleeding and dying. This witness also failed to identify the prisoner. The case was then given to the jury, the Recorder charging in favor of the prisoner, and a verdict of not guilty was promptly returned.

Report of Judges upon GILT and BRONZE CHANDELIERS, GLASS CHANDELIERS, and BRONZES, exhibited by MITCHELL, VANCE & CO.:
"We fully agree that the bronze fixtures are superior in artistic design, workmanship and finish to any made in this country, and probably in the world. The bronzes, especially the large pieces which are copied from the French, are the best productions of the country. The glass chandeliers are equal if not superior to the celebrated Osler manufacture, (English,) which have been heretofore acknowledged the best in the world. The glass is of unusual whiteness. They rank A1.
